

A vintage photograph of a sunset over the ocean. The sky is filled with large, billowing clouds in shades of orange, yellow, and purple. The sun is a bright, glowing orb in the center of the sky, partially obscured by clouds. The ocean below is dark with white-capped waves breaking. A single bird is seen in flight in the lower center of the sky. The entire image is framed by a white border with rounded corners.

the 1990s, the number of people in the world who are undernourished has increased from 250 million to 800 million (FAO 1996).

Memories . . . when analyzed, that's what high school was all about. Some were good, some were bad, and all served a purpose in molding our characters. Getting yelled at in the parking lot for various violations got to be a daily experience for some students, as blanking out on tests did for others. One enjoyable activity was pep rallies before football games. Although some students fought against showing their school spirit, they were outnumbered by enthusiastic Seniors, as well as underclassmen.

One very special event of the year for Seniors was the prom. Choosing the right dress, or the right tux suddenly became the most important thing at that time. After waiting for what seemed an eternity for our Senior year, it came and went faster than any of us could have imagined.

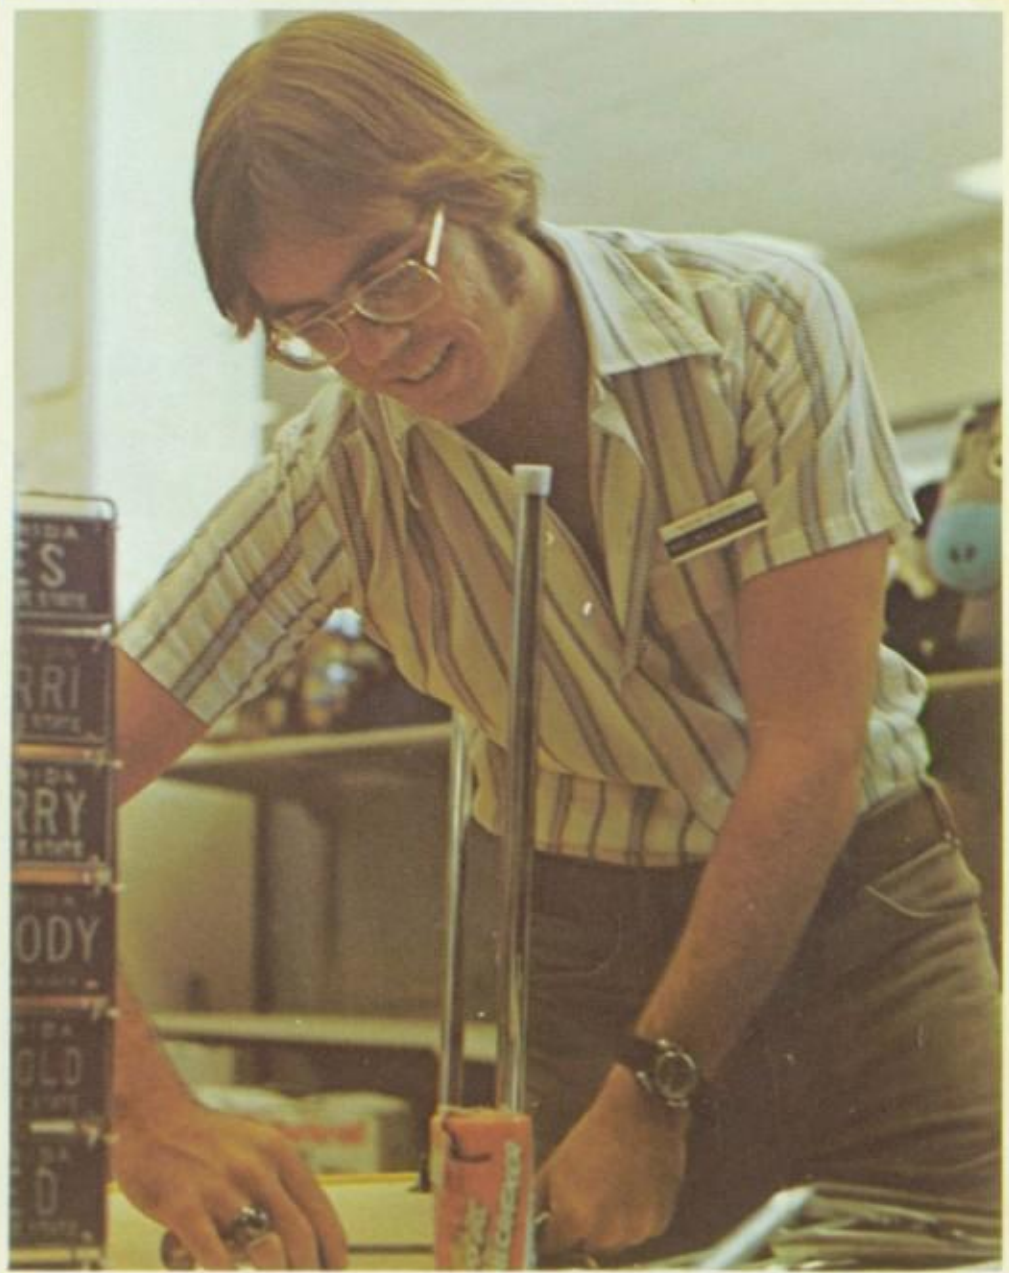

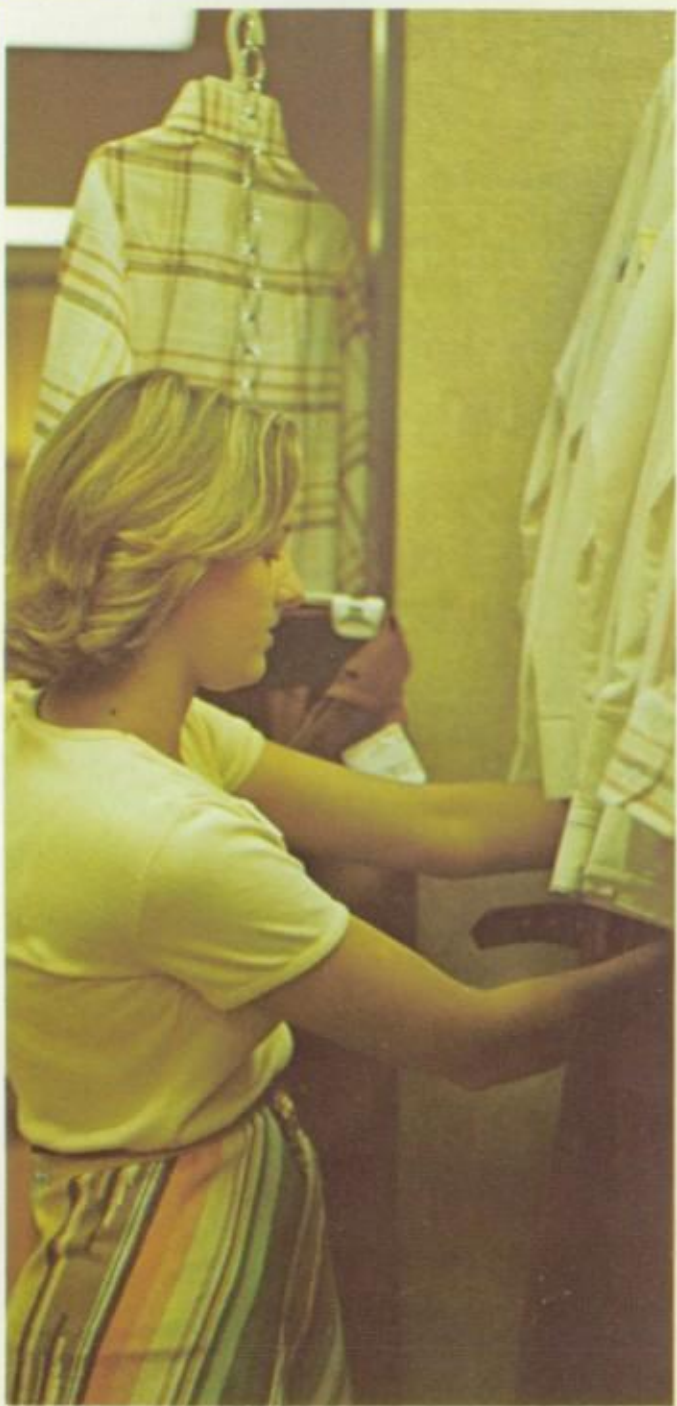

Find a job!! For the unemployed students at Pompano Beach High, this was a never ending thought. Not only was working good for their wallets, but many students learned more on-the-job skills and responsibilities, which would help to prepare them for what lay ahead.

After being exposed to the "real world", many students were awakened to the fact that fun and games at PBHS could not last forever.

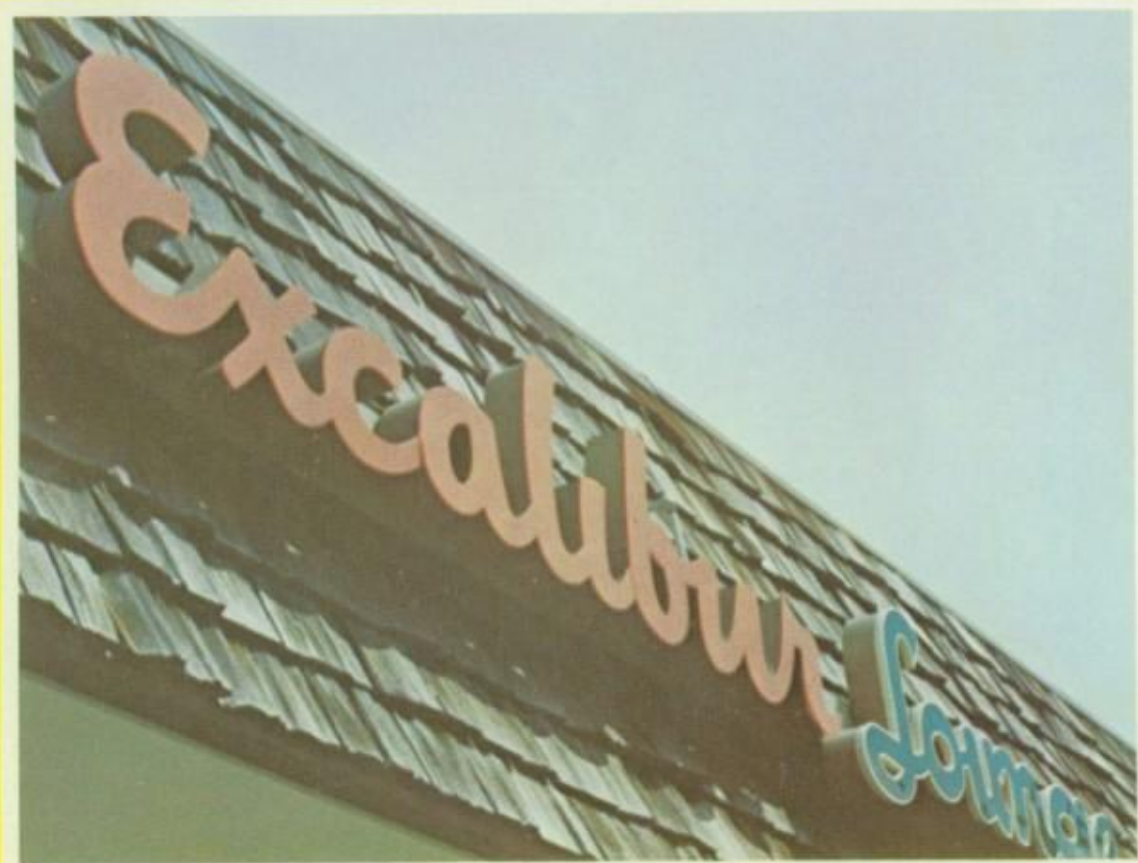

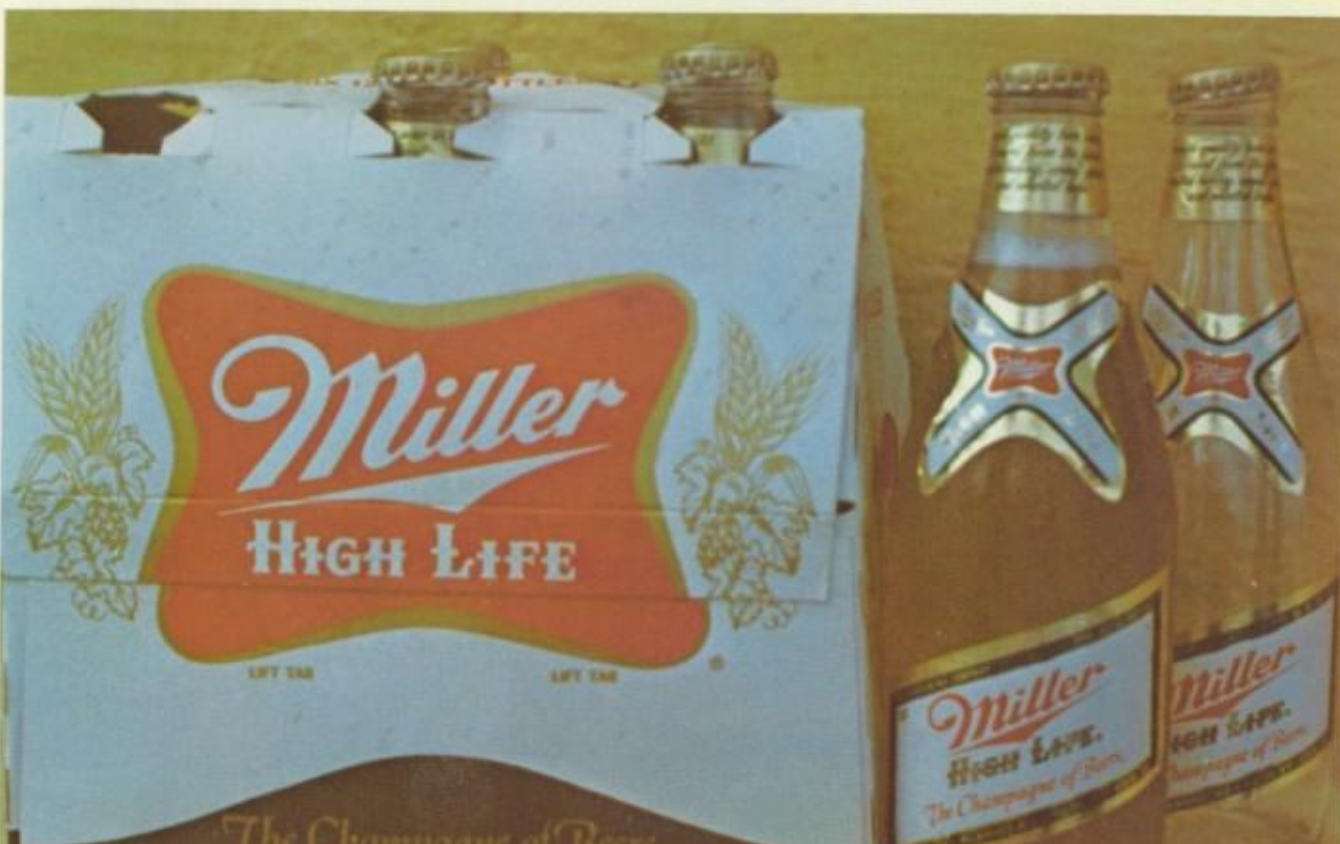

In our high school years, our social activities began to take a position of importance in our lives for the first time. Friends became more important to us and exerted more influence over us than they ever had before or ever will again.

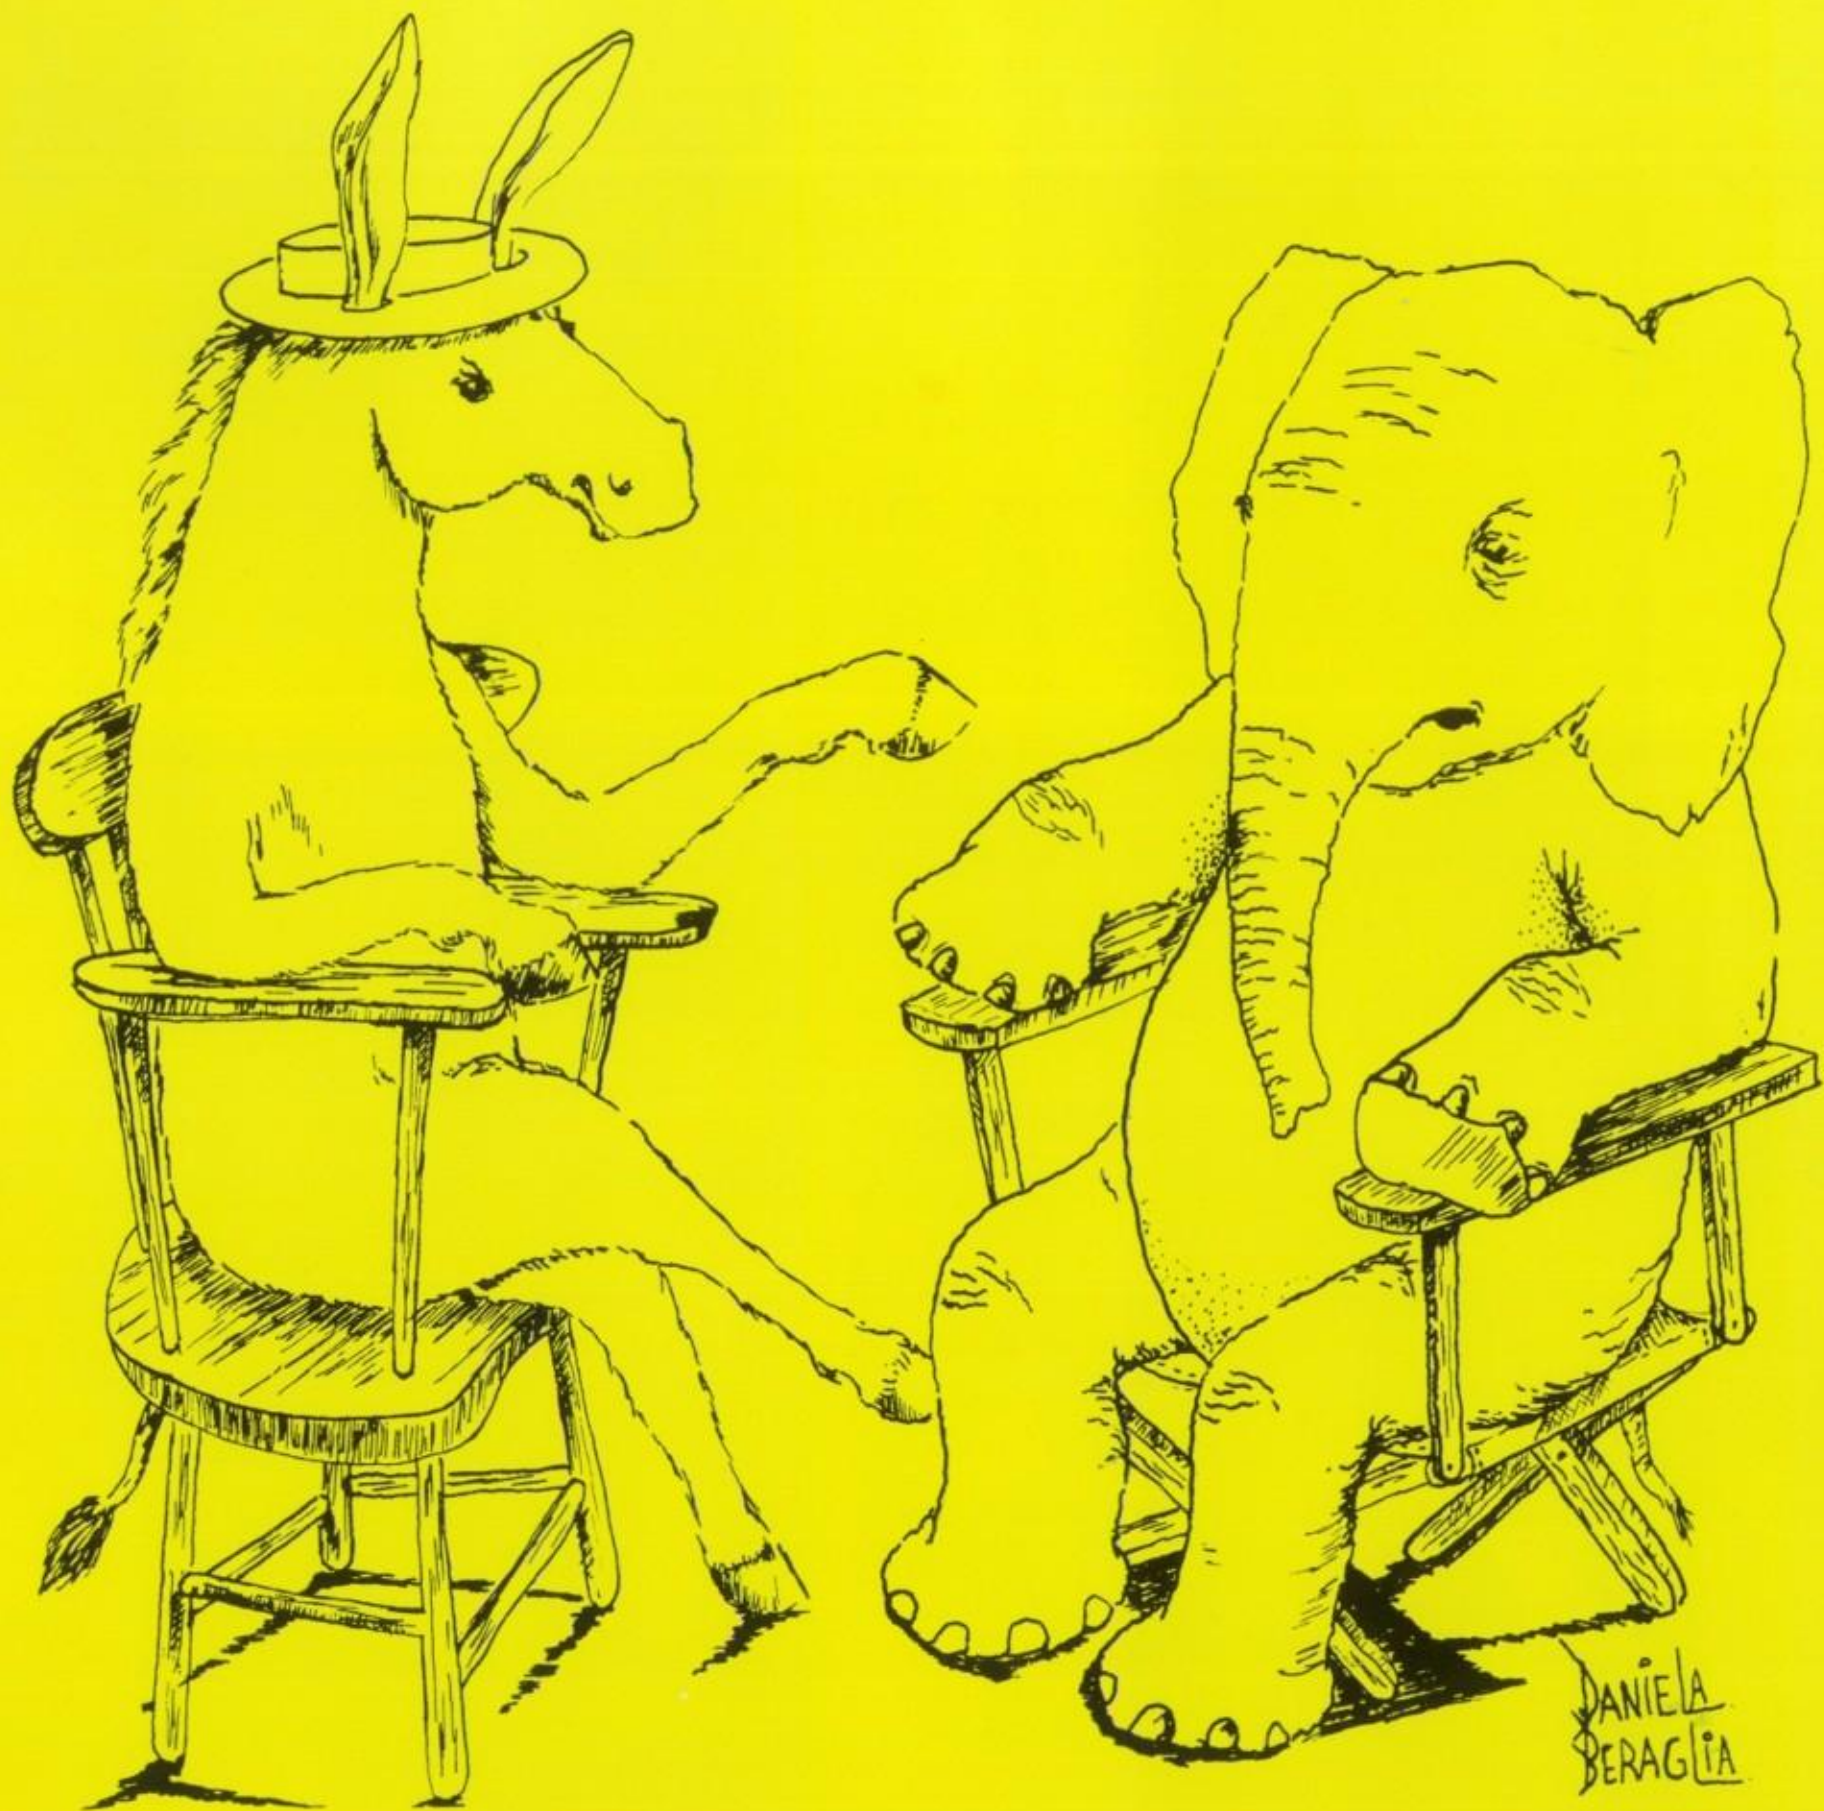

It was a time of new horizons—of firsts. For some it may have been that first nervous date in their freshman year, maybe one's first serious boy or girl friend. Our first dance, first football game, and first party all had a special significance . . . For some, another serious, major social step came on their eighteenth birthday. For better or worse the world of bars and nightclubs opened yet another avenue of their social lives.

In a time of growing and changing it was perhaps in our social lives, our interaction with other people that we made the greatest changes of all. For it was the broadening horizons in our social life that steered us away from home and out into the world on our own.

Politics ... it makes the world go round. Whatever happened to people making the world go round? Through our difficult years of adolescence many incidents made us stop and wonder what was actually going on in the world. Watergate was by far the most shocking revelation to take place in the history of our government. Through it all though, we were always given new hopes and new horizons to conquer. As Ronald Reagan said in his speech at the Republican Convention in August of 1976, "It is up to us as to what happens in the Tricentennial". Our generation showed great potential, if we would only take advantage of it.

After graduation we were faced with one of the biggest decisions of our lives. Where to go from here?

For many, college was the obvious answer. Still they were faced with the problem of deciding which college to attend and what to study.

Others went straight into responsibilities in the working world. Buying a car or getting an apartment for oneself forced us to be more independent and more responsible.

If you have a skill, today's Army has a job for you.
And a promotion.

With our new Stripes for Skills Program, we can help you make the most of your skill.
Ask your Army Representative to tell you about it.

Today's Army

We have a lot more to offer.

Maybe the single greatest step we could take was marriage. The sharing of our lives with someone else may be the ultimate responsibility.

After twelve years of school and possibly several years of a part-time job, many graduates wanted only a complete change in life-style. Travel offered a chance to get away and see the world. The armed forces provided the benefits of travel, a job, and free education.

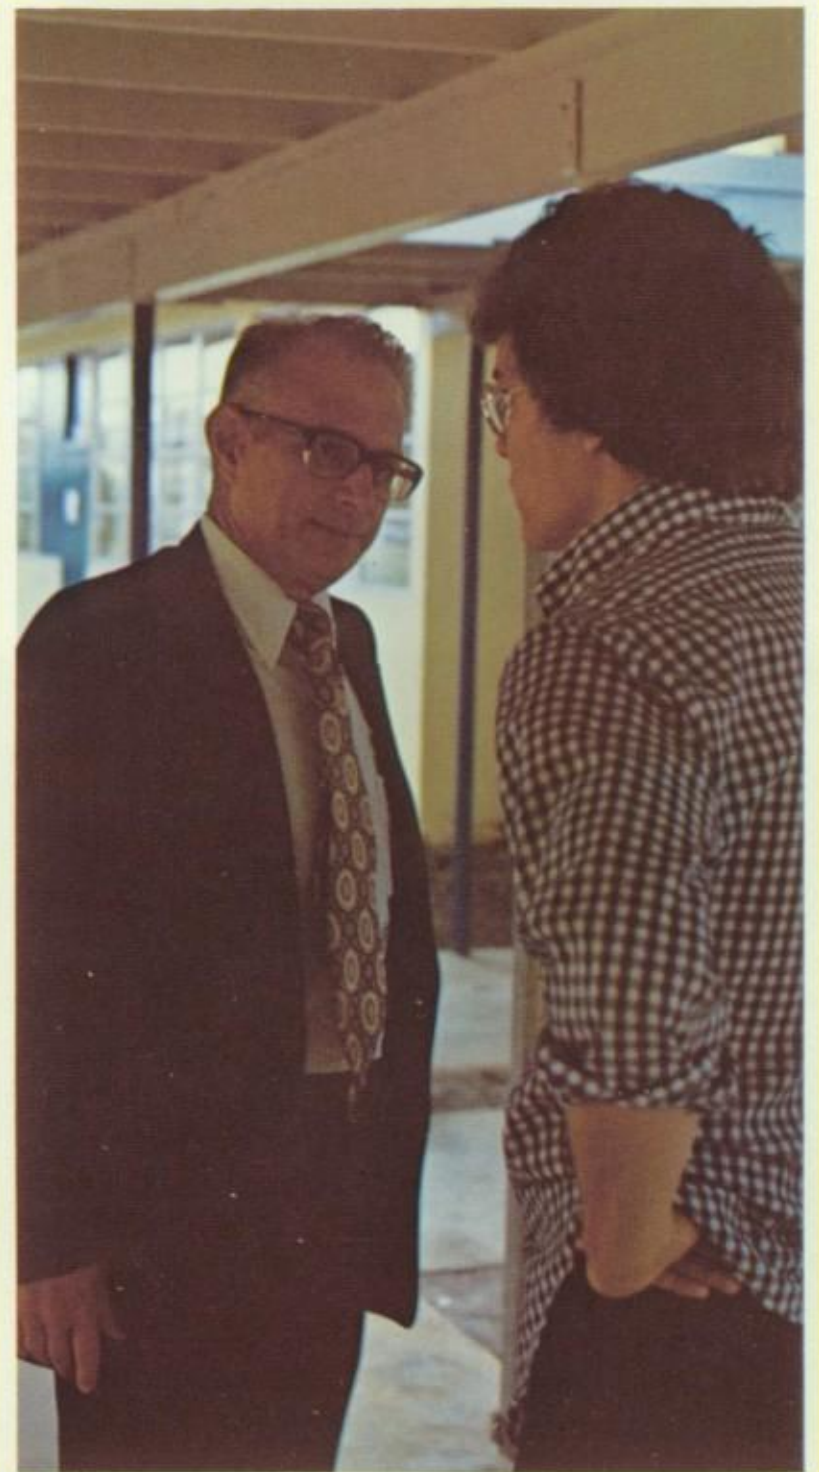

The horizons that we each faced were as individual as our own personalities. In the first days after graduation we set a course for the rest of our lives.

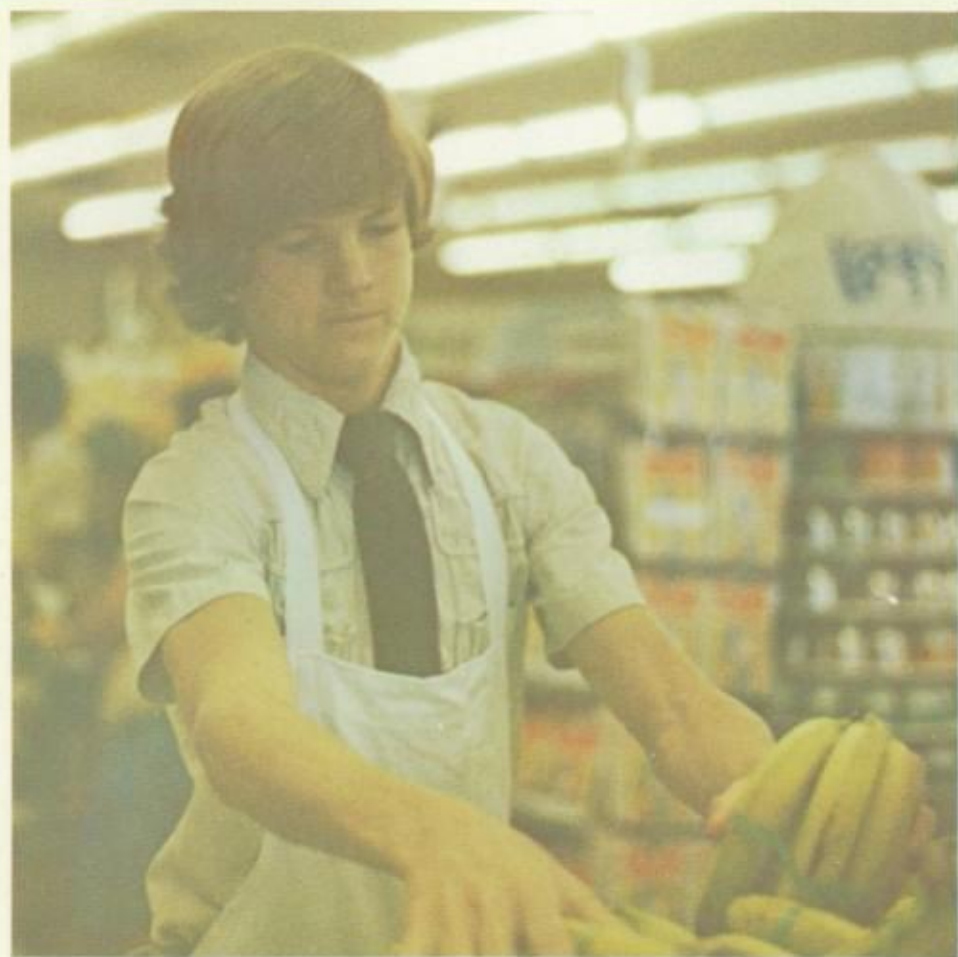

All through our lives, from the time we discover there is another world outside our home, until we die, we dream about the things we want to do. We are always trying to make ourselves better. We try to improve ourselves in skill, personality and looks, without realizing it. We try to make ourselves happier and to have more friends to share our happiness.

From the time we take our first step and utter our first words, we constantly strive to achieve goals and ideas to make our lives have a purpose. As we grow older, our goals usually grow right along with us. School becomes a major part of our lives as we try to absorb knowledge to prepare for the future.

After we leave school, our responsibilities grow even larger as we try to mold a good life for ourselves and our children. We look forward to each day as a chance in which something can be accomplished. Since the beginning of time people have had jobs, plans, goals, and ideas to achieve. Becoming an independent, mature, self-reliant person should be among the ideals for which we strive. To achieve these ideals, goals must be set, horizons must be conquered. We should start to worry when we think there are no more horizons to conquer.

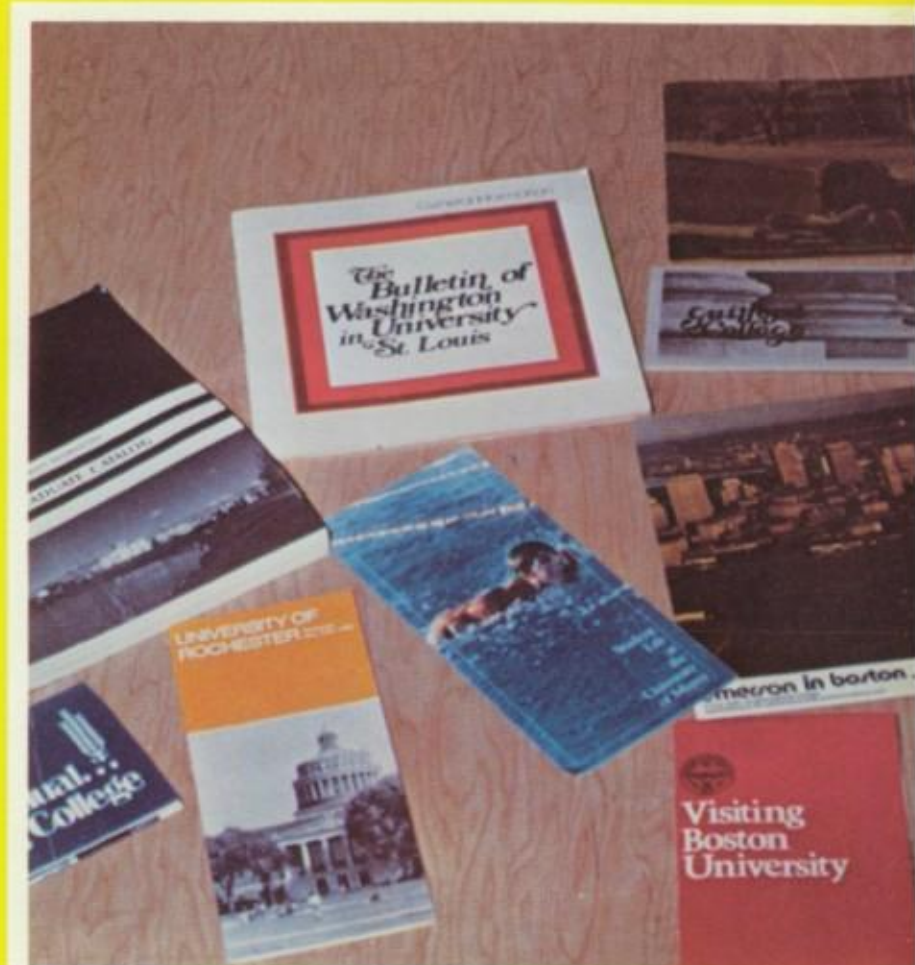

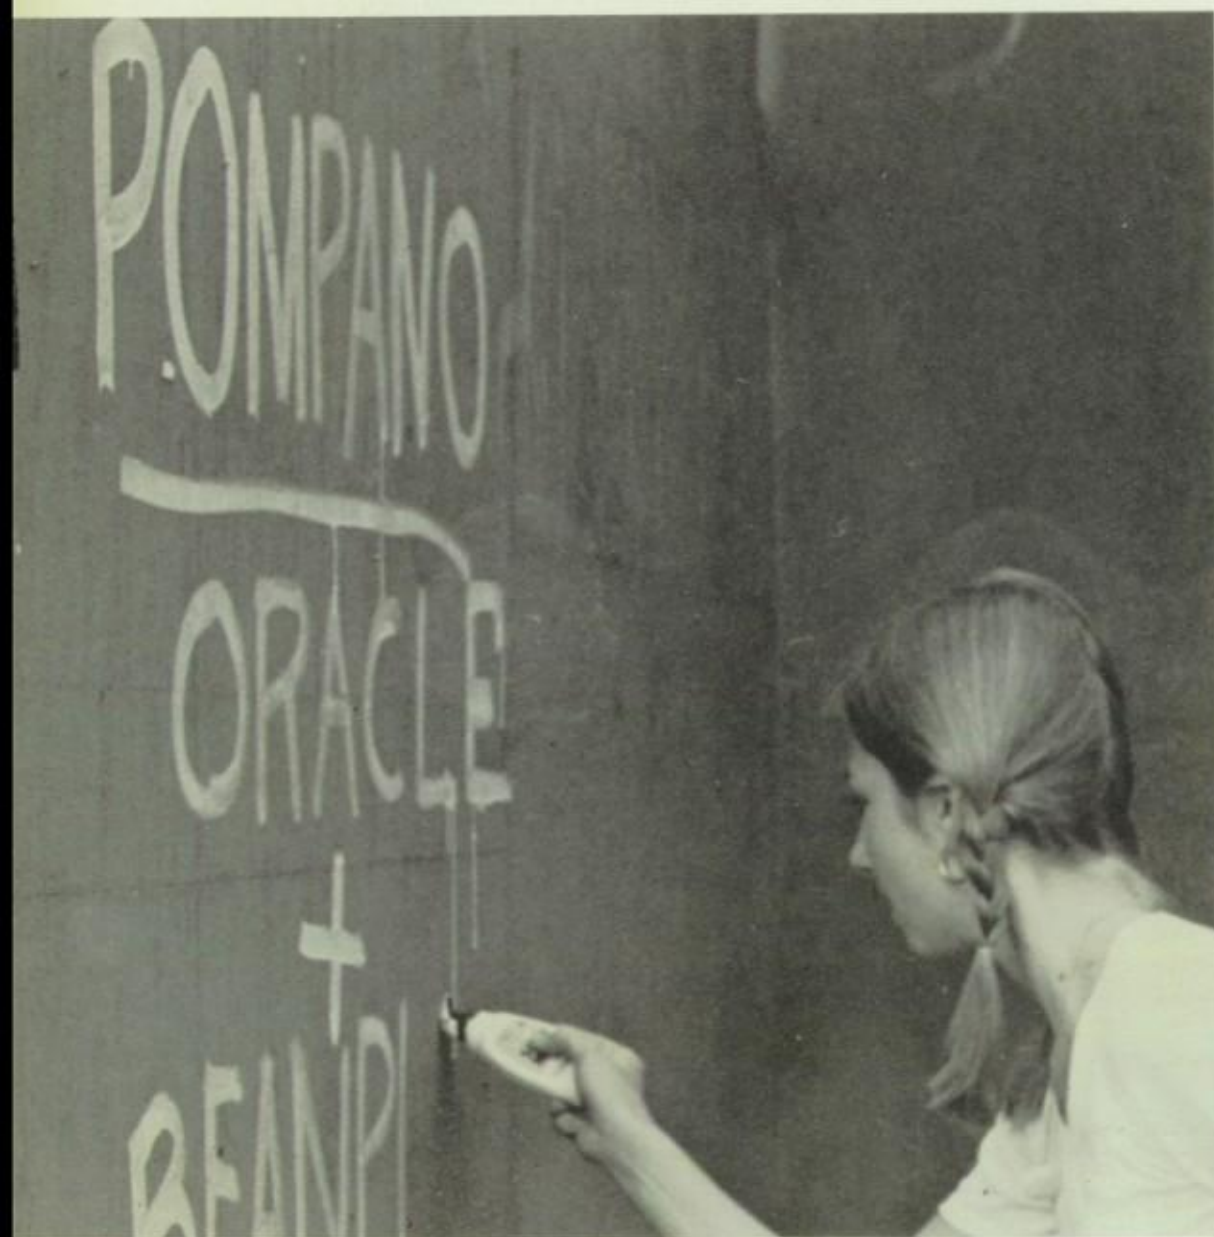

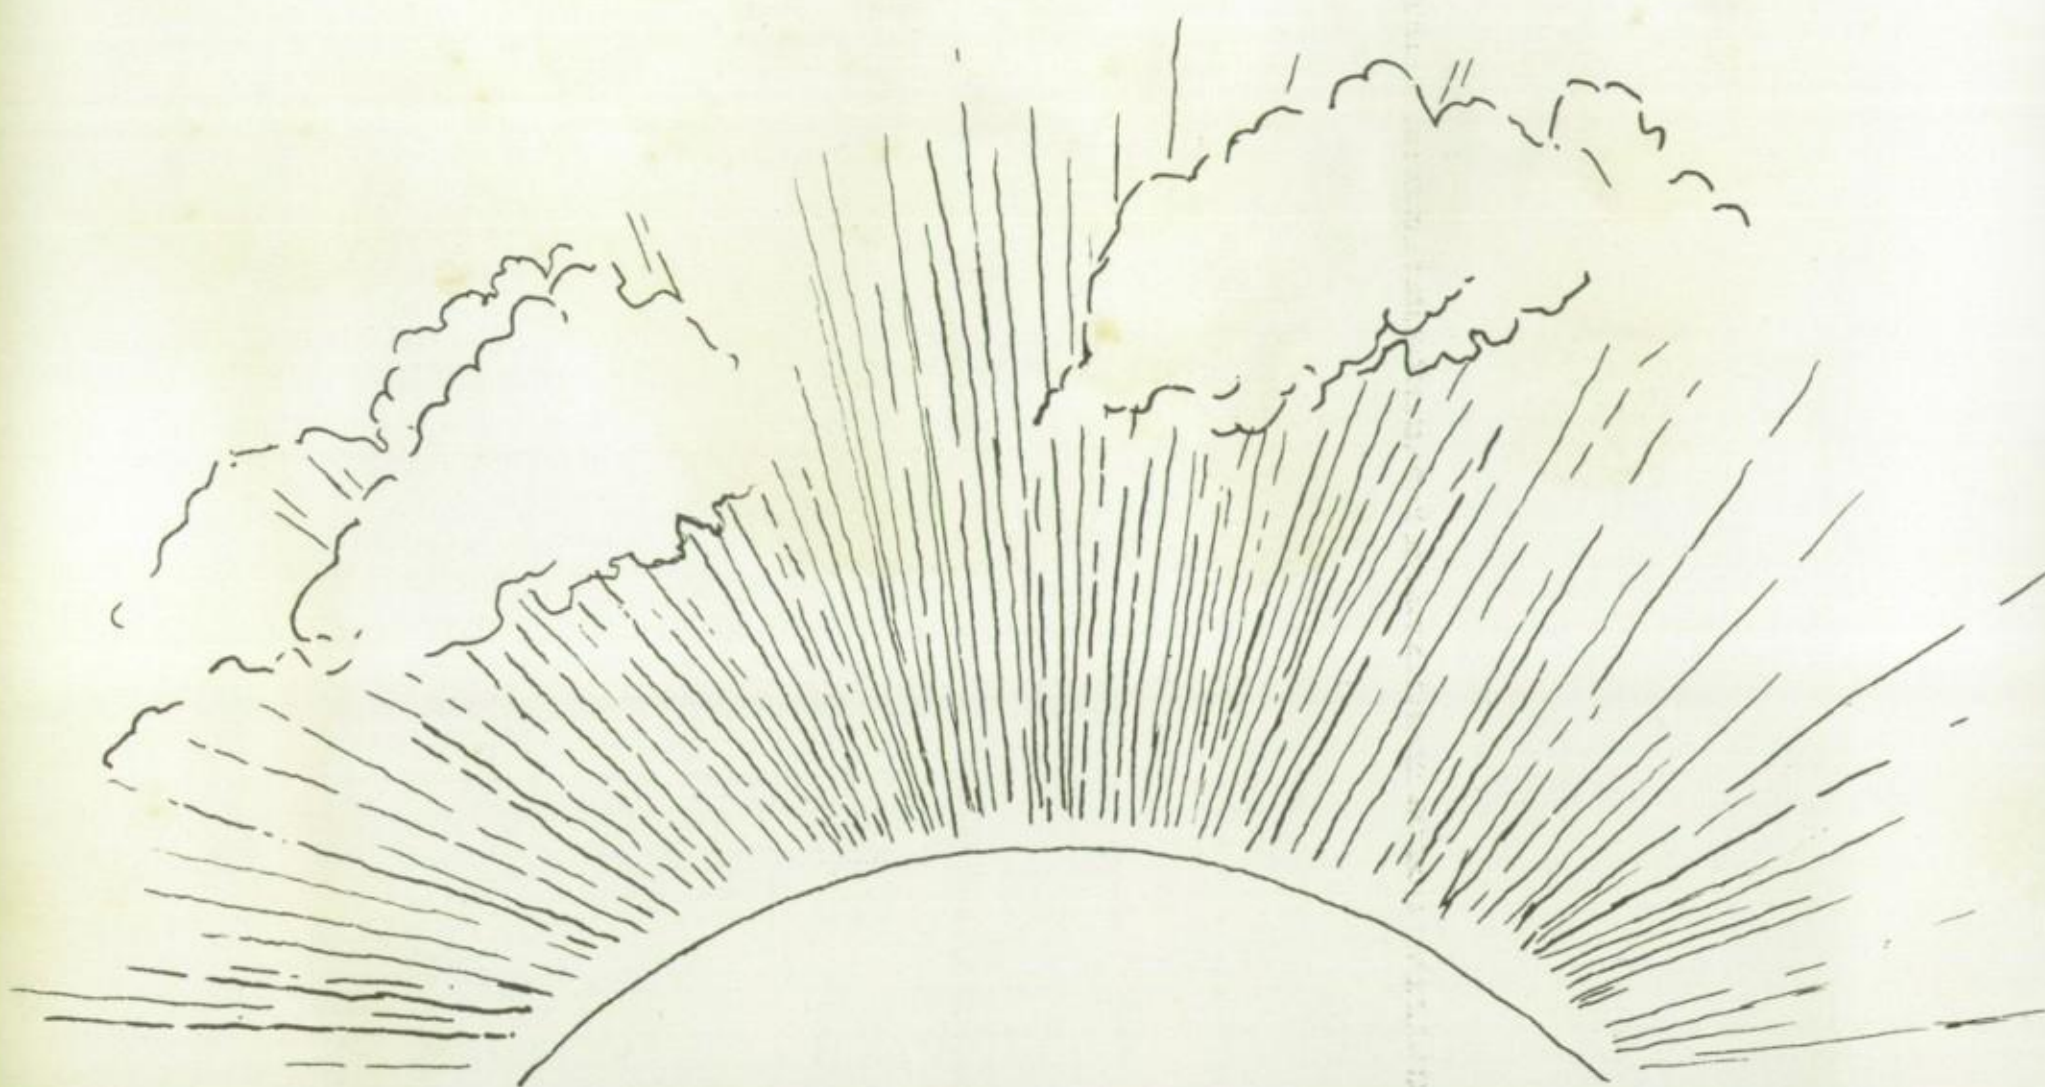

To become a more independent person, a mutual trust between ourselves, our teachers, and our parents is necessary. We must strive for honesty, keep promises, and respect the rights of others.

As our level of independence rises, so does our level of maturity. Through education, our minds are exposed to the knowledge needed in today's society. In the security of the home, we are allowed to make more complex decisions, be they right or wrong.

During the learning process of making decisions, gaining knowledge, accepting responsibility for our acts in relationships to ourselves, teachers, and parents, we thus become self reliant.

Restlessness with Americans is what has kept our country going, not giving up or quitting—always trying to better ourselves, question others, and willing to make changes among ourselves. Curiosity about everything opens our eyes to new ideas and horizons yet to come . . . We've learned from our past, our presence now is priceless, and the future ahead of us holds many horizons to conquer.

STUDENT LIFE

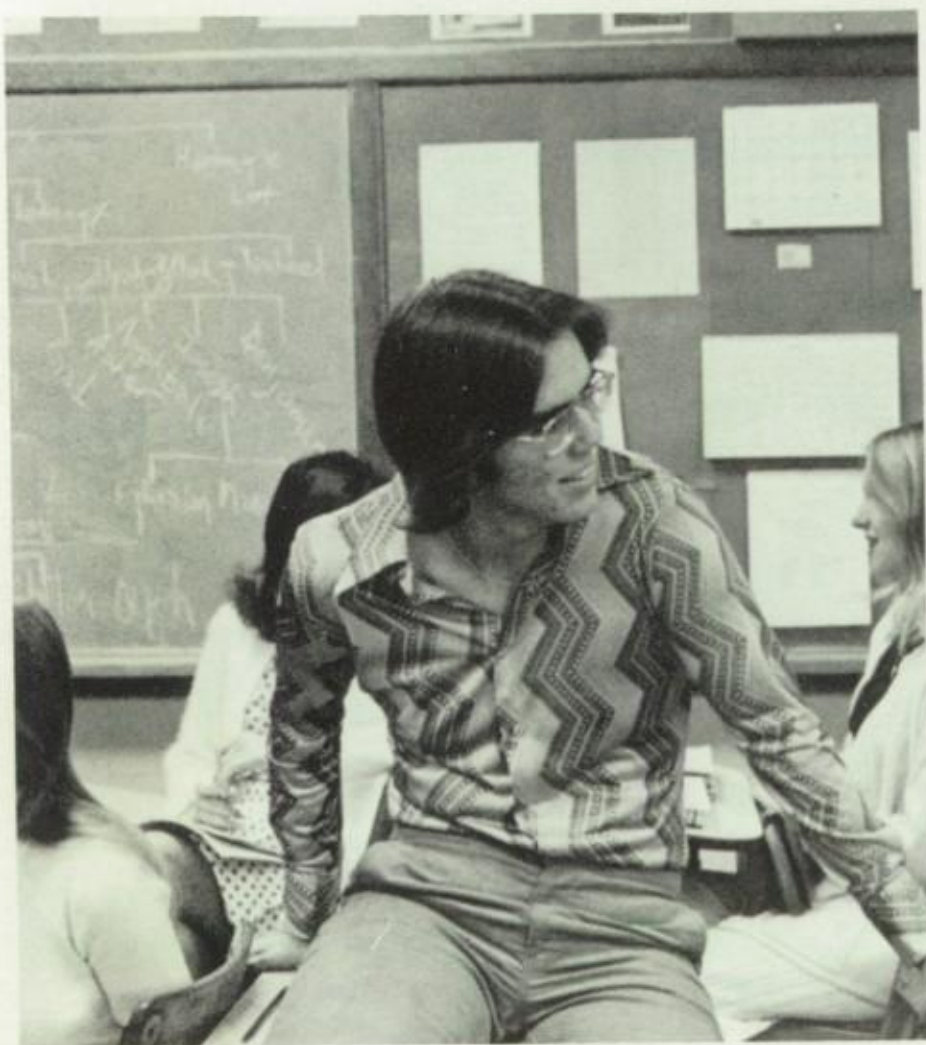

The boys that were chosen for Boy's State had to fill out applications and then be interviewed before they qualified. After that, the chosen few went to the state capital to learn more about the government and how they as individuals could function within it. They also held elections with boys from other schools and ran for county and state positions. The experience was memorable not only for the educational part, but also for the people they met. It prepared them to be the leaders of tomorrow.

Acceptance for Girls' State was determined by essays and speeches on American government written by the candidates. The winners then went on to Tallahassee and met with other members of Girls' State to learn about our government and what is needed to improve our system. The students then had elections and ran for various offices, such as mayors, senators, and county commissioners. The girls were also given a guided tour of the Capitol and found out about our history as well as the present. The girls chosen were proud of their achievement and they gained experience in leadership.

National recognition was given to outstanding Seniors by Who's Who Among American High School Students, a directory of students' achievements across the nation. This directory is distributed to colleges, large corporations, and major libraries and is considered to be the leading publicized account of student achievement. The students chosen were involved in either academics, athletics, other extracurricular activities, or community service. Pompano had good reason to be proud of its contribution to the nation's future leaders.

And What's Your Handle?

High School fads have gone from malt shops, bobby socks, and crew cuts to discotheques, gauchos, and the wedge. This may seem like a drastic change, but fads changed so fast that a person had to keep his ears and eyes open to be sure he knew what the latest styles were and where to hang-out. The person who did keep up with fads was probably a skateboard expert, or he cruised around town in his pick-up truck and talked on his CB. The Fonz may have been cool in the fifties, but CB's were "where it's at". And that's a big 10-4!

"He Loves me, He Loves me not". This seemed to be a continuous question in the minds of Pompano's young lovers. A kiss in the hall, by one's locker, or outside in broad daylight was a common sight observed by students, teachers, deans, and yearbook photographers. Although Pompano offered no formal courses in kissing, many students decided to major in this art anyway.

Various class attitudes were:
 Freshmen—"Ha-Ha ya missed me, now ya gotta kiss me".
 Sophomores—"I Wanna Hold Your Hand".
 Juniors—"Kiss Me, You Fool".
 Seniors—"I fooled around and fell in love."

Court in Session

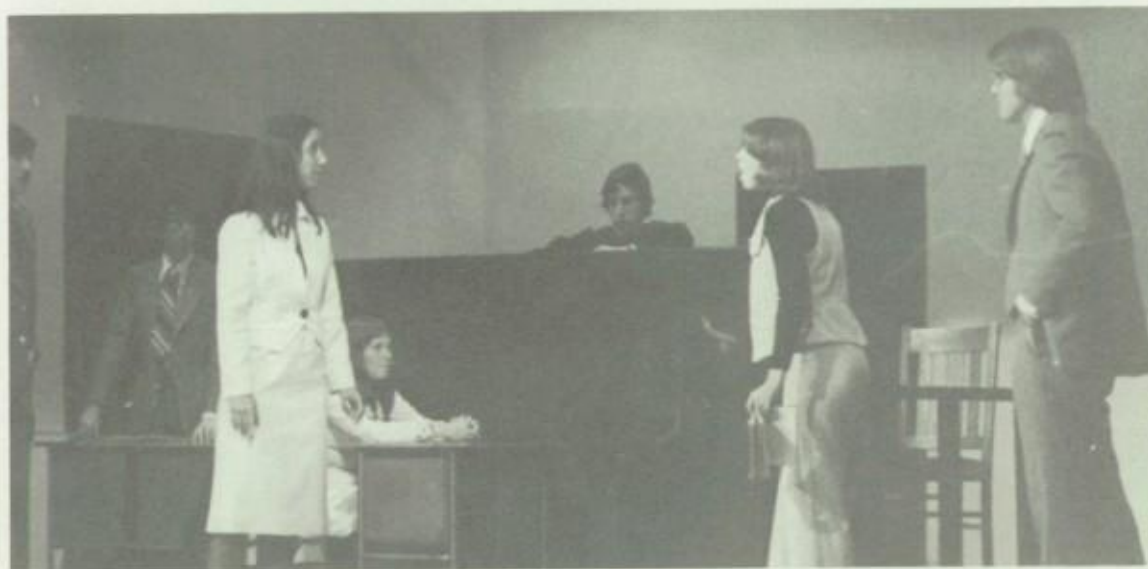

On February 22 and 23 Pompano High's Thespian Troupe presented Ayn Rand's Night of January 16th. A courtroom drama that featured the unique excitement of an actual vote by jurors picked from the audience, the play was produced with a precision that reflected the many weeks of hard work put in by all involved.

Many new Pompano High talents made their debut in The Night of January 16th.— including director Brian Rowland. It was also the final performance for many veteran Thespians.

The performers in The Night of January 16th received great support from the stage and set crew, while their performance did justice to the play's technical excellence.

Interact Makes A Comeback

The Interact Club got a fresh start this year. The Interact Club is a public service club to help students in our school. This year one of the major projects of the club was to cover the school insignia in the gym to protect it. The club members also partook in selling tickets for an antique auction and also had a very successful car wash.

Winter Wonderland

Terri Scates bundles up against the cold.

Once during a cold rain, a Pompano student was overheard to say, "Someone tell me if it's snowing." On January 19, 1977, she and other Pompano students who were confused about the nature of snow, had a chance to experience it first-hand. Snow fell on Broward County for the first time in its recorded history.

American History teacher, Mr. Robert Wilkner and a handful of courageous students braved icy winds and risked frostbite to take part of their semester exam in the snow—certainly the only Pompano students ever to have done so. They considered their group among the most exclusive clubs in the world and hoped to meet regularly during every Pompano snowfall.

To be quite honest, Pompano's snowfall was not the kind White Christmases are made of—none of it even accumulated on the ground. We are not sure whether anyone ever said, "The day it snows on Pompano High will be a cold day in Hell." We are sure that at least one of those days has come to pass.

Black, White, and Read all Over.

In the year of 1976-1977, the Oracle had a good year. With involved and hard working staff members, the Oracle hit more controversial issues than before. If you got tired of the well written articles, which was hard to do, you could always get a laugh out of the classifieds.

The monthly newspaper stressed student involvement by taking student surveys and giving student quizzes on various topics that concerned us all.

In the Homecoming Parade the Oracle teamed up with the Beanpicker Staff and created a beautiful car.

In February the Oracle had a Great February Give-away. Students had a chance to win various prizes in a newspaper sweepstakes.

The Oracle established itself as a fine newspaper, thanks to interested students and the hardwork of advisor, Mr. Brian Rowland. What is Black, White, and Read all Over? The Oracle, of course.

Out to Lunch

Unlike typical institutional food, the Pompano cafeteria lunches were tasty, varied, and popular. And the price was right.

However, for the gourmets, the wealthy, and those "deserving a break" from the campus routine, there were many nearby restuarants and snack shops. Some of the most popular were Roma's, MacDonald's, Pic-a-Pizza and Burger King.

Building The Blaze

A long standing tradition at Pompano was the building of the Homecoming bonfire. Students collected lumber, signs, paper, trash, anything on which something could be written that would commemorate that year's Homecoming—and then be promptly burned so that there was nothing but ashes to be remembered.

Instead of looking forward, students at Pompano looked backwards into the past. In fact they did much more than just look, they dressed in bobby socks, saddle oxfords, leather jackets, and penny loafers. As for the hair it was pony tails and Vitalis. All of this was to portray the look of the "50's".

Teachers and students both participated, and it turned out to be a hit. After school there was a best dressed contest for guys and girls. The winner was announced that night at the Tornado Watch.

Homecoming traditionally began with the annual parade beginning at Kester Park and touring Pompano. Spectators enjoyed viewing the various floats and costumes exhibiting students creativity. Parade Of Pompano's Finest

The most beautiful part of Homecoming, was at the Homecoming game. For the pregame show there was a parade of the winning club floats, the class attendants, and the most lovely part, the five finalists for 1976 Homecoming Queen. The finalists were: Lori Doyle, Debbie Montouri, Melinda Muselman, Donna Rector, and Liz Williams. Everyone cheered for the lovely girls and their escorts. All felt a part of the excitement and enthusiasm leading up to the big moment, the crowning of the queen.

The Homecoming Football game was the highlight of Homecoming '76. The Golden Tornadoes took on the Coconut Creek Cougars for an exciting and fun-filled game. The stands were filled with enthusiastic Pompano fans, many of whom were awe struck until the very end, which was the most terrifying moment for all: football players, coaches and fans alike, the clock ran out and the score was still tied. The game went into overtime, with Coconut Creek scoring first, but missing the point after. Then the Tornadoes scored a touchdown and gained the extra point, thus ending the '76 Homecoming game with cheers of victory from all.

Homecoming Hustle

Homecoming '76 wasn't complete until the dance. Planned and presented by the junior class, the dance was held at the civic center after the game. Fine music was provided by "Blackwatch", an excellent local band.

Although many students missed the first part of the dance because of the game's overtime and much of the dance time was taken up by the presentation of door prizes, the dance should still be considered a success; it served its role as the final jewel in the crown of Homecoming.

'Til Next Year

Homecoming 1976 ... for some it was the real beginning of high school, an activity in which everyone could participate and enjoy. The tension was on a few weeks before as the girls waited for that "someone special" to ask and the guys waited to find out if that "someone special" would go with them. However, for seniors it was something special, in some ways happy and in some ways sad. It meant the end of high school football, a sport everyone could relate to and feel proud of.

Fonzie Day proved to be another "rocking" success, as did the bonfire, which was constructed in two short days. Homecoming meant happy memories for queen Melinda Musselman as well as the rest of Pompano High, for the great Golden Tornados brought us another victory.

ACADEMICS

Leader of our school, Dr. Myers.

A ringing phone keeps Dr. Myers a busy man.

P.B.H.S.—A WELL OILED MACHINE

Dr. Myers and his secretary Mrs. Reiniger—a hardworking twosome.

The administrative personnel at Pompano were responsible for all the inner workings of the school. Using their experience, knowledge, advice, and good judgement, they coordinated all the activities that took place within the school.

The principal, Dr. Owen T. Myers, had to serve as a corporation executive; being a business manager, tied to his desk with paper work; while being personnel director and counselor, working with students, teachers, staff, parents, and community. As a good will ambassador, he had to keep peace among all factions.

Assisting him was Mr. James Jones, whose largest concern was coordinating all student activities: clubs, assemblies, fund raising drives, graduation exercises, etc. He also assisted the principal in administrative decisions and reserving buildings and rooms for events scheduled by the school and community.

Also helping with administrative decisions was Mr. Duke Maltby, our other assistant principal. His main concern was the thankless job of scheduling every student for a class he or she should have had. He had to please teachers, guidance counselors, students, and parents while making sure the student had the proper credits toward graduation. Mr. Maltby had a glimpse of "science fiction", as he had to work with computers that printed student's schedules, grades, and personal information.

A grueling, but sometimes rewarding part of administration was the job of the deans. Miss Roberta Durbin and Mr. Joseph Smith worked long hours—before, during, and after school—helping students with personal and disciplinary problems. They spent much time counseling individual students who had come to them, voluntarily, for advice and guidance.

Of course, many students were sent to the deans involuntarily and were "counseled" about certain matters such as: skipping, "hassling teachers", smoking, or breaking other rules.

When not busy with students, Miss Durbin and Mr. Smith handled administrative problems, patrolled the campus, talked to parents, and handled the momentuous task of "keeping track" of attendance.

A corporation as complex and as large as PBHS, could not have functioned effectively without our hard working and dedicated administrative staff.

ADVICE UNLIMITED

Did you have problems during your high school years? Most of us did and had a hard time finding solutions to those problems. Help in finding solutions was available though, from the guidance department.

For those who had schedule problems, the counselors could work out the best schedule to suit their needs. The 1976 registration procedure, in which students were not given the choice of teachers or periods, left more students wanting schedule changes than ever before.

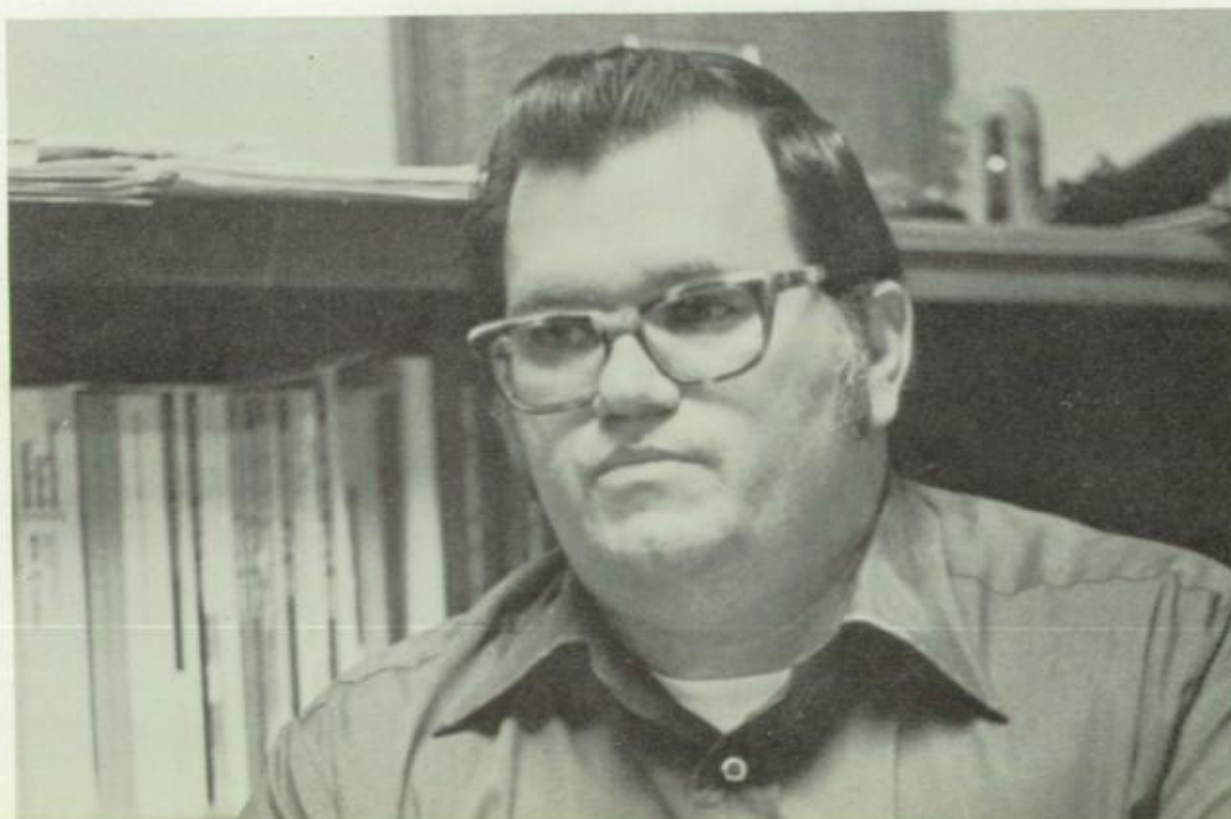

Vocational counseling was available for those students who wished to work in outside jobs. To those optimists who hoped to go to college, the guidance counselors offered aid in choosing and applying to a college.

Guidance counselors also helped students deal with personal problems. Whether there were family problems at home, grade difficulties, problems with fellow students or teachers; the counselors tried to help us solve our dilemmas.

VOLUNTARY DRAFT

Bret Baughman works it all out.

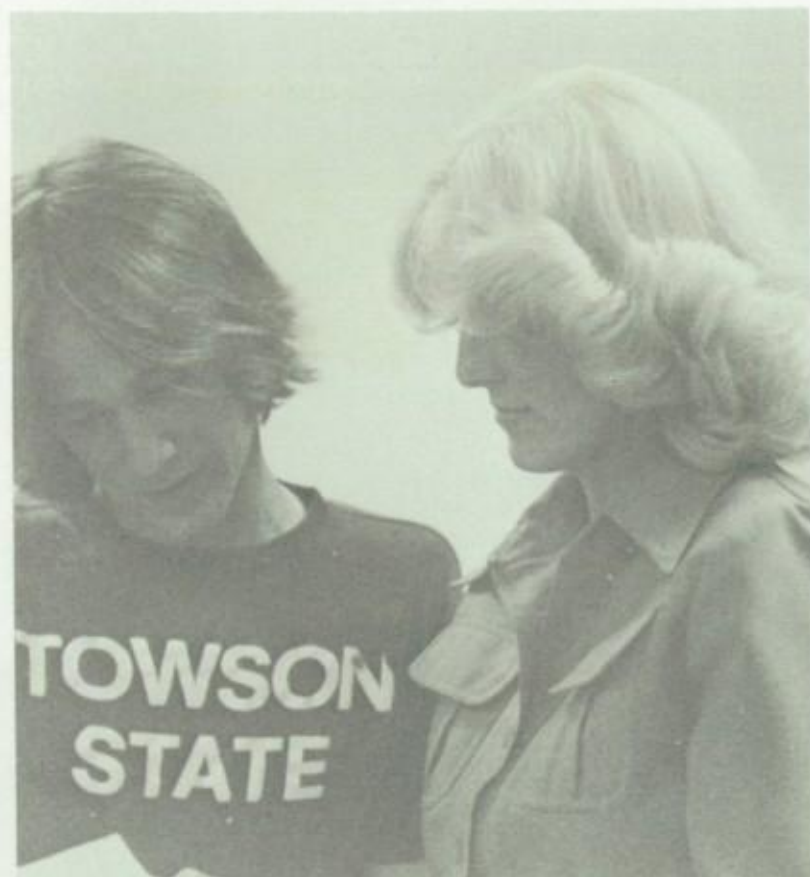

Industrial Arts student works hard.

The industrial arts department of our school exceeded many other school programs, giving the students a choice of twelve different subjects he could pick from. He could take anything from engine repair and architectural drafting to electronics and communications, a new course offered. This course gave our students a chance to study amplifiers, C.B., AM-FM, and other related transceivers. Industrial Arts also gave the students a chance to work in electronics sales and service stores in our area. Altogether, the industrial arts department prepared individuals for highly skilled vocational and technical education programs.

Our Native Tongue

Tony Reese enjoys being helped by Miss Kendrick.

There was never very much to say about English. It was just there—Old Faithful, as solid as the Rock of Gibraltar. Students took English for granted; its subject matter seemed all so predictable. By our graduation the men we had grown to know intimately—Shakespeare, Poe, Chaucer, Hemingway, Dickens, Irving—had faded into a blur of page numbers and footnotes. To make the giants of literature interesting to students who read little else besides the TV Guide, took men and women of great imagination, insight, and originality. The teachers of the English department didn't always fit that description, but they all did have occasional moments of inspiration. A sense of humor was also a valuable asset to English teachers, especially to those who dared to include lie and lay in their lessons on the meanings of verbs. In the final or near final analysis, we will all look back on our days in "C" building, that hallowed hall of heresy, with a tear in our eye and a tongue in our cheek.

Remember, watch the book, not the fingers.

A Cultural Challenge

Tracy Hiebel munches out.

MMMMM' GOOD!!

Miss O'Connor smiles as she hands back a good test result.

The foreign language department got off to a challenging start. It went through a few changes, with the addition of Italian to the already popular French, German, Latin, and Spanish courses. With this addition came the need for a new teacher, which was filled by Mr. Tronconi. Another teacher, Mrs. Groszer, was also added to fulfill the need for the popular Spanish classes. The most popular event that went on was the cooking—from fondue to tacos to the German's best saurkraut or maybe "beci?" These courses seemed to give the students challenge and adventure without leaving home.

Thats a spicy meatball!!!

GETTING DOWN TO EARTH

The agriculture department, after receiving one thousand dollars, expanded their program to bring their students a more fulfilled learning experience.

The students worked hard on the farm, doing actual plowing, driving tractors, and caring for livestock.

Many students found agriculture extremely enjoyable through working outside everyday and working with their hands.

When the crops were gathered, the hard work put into it paid off. All the students felt this was a "down-to-earth" class. The course proved a valuable experience for all.

David Miceli picks the cream of the crop.

Mrs. Anderson's sewing class is glad to stop working for a minute.

It has been written that man does not live by bread alone. Any Pompano High student would have heartily agreed. They knew that meat, lettuce, cheese and other things were needed in addition to bread; all this would equal a hoagie. This lust for food among high school students began the origins of home economics. In home ec. students could learn to cook for themselves and balance their diet, a big step on the road to self-sufficiency.

It has also been written that clothes make the man (or woman). Home Economics has reversed the situation and man now makes the clothes: besides being a valuable skill and a great way to save money, sewing one's own clothes became a source of personal pride and satisfaction.

THERE'S NO PLACE LIKE HOME EC.

Roxanne Colbroth wonders, "is that edible?"

Erin Perry and Lee Eugley seem to be cooking up something mischievous.

LEADERS OF TOMORROW

Paula Halko helps DECA.

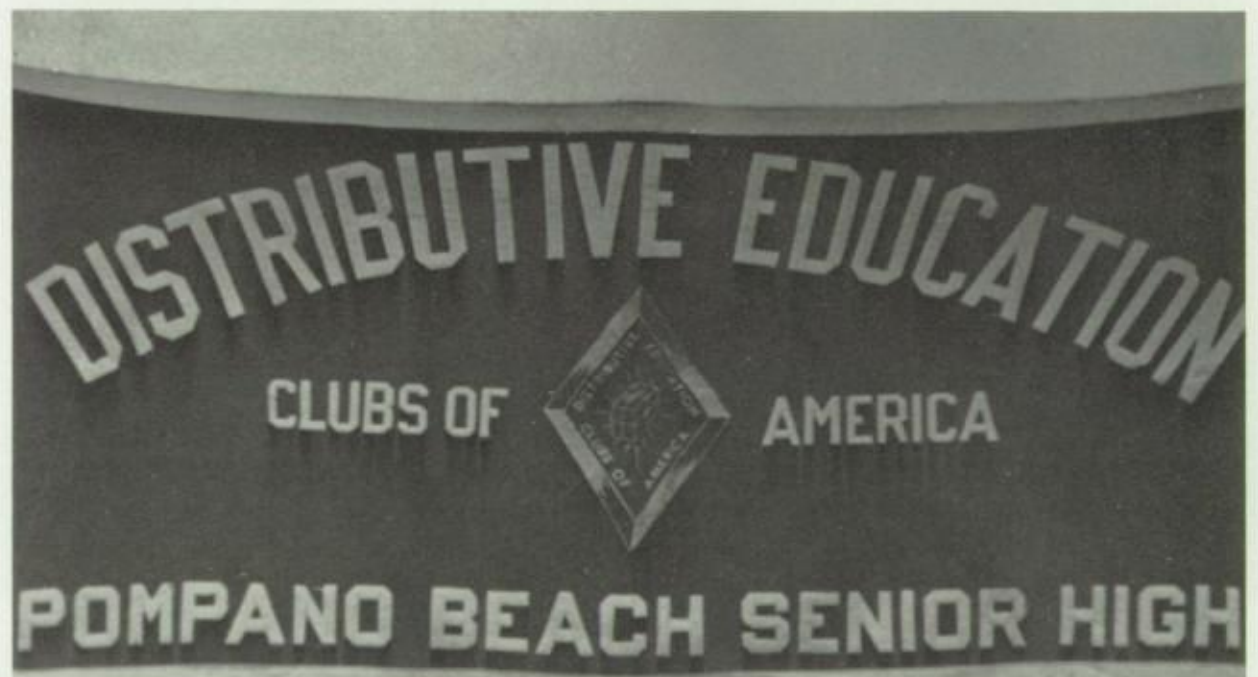

Miss Cooley directs the class.

An integral part of Distributive Education, DECA provided a program of leadership, personal development, and career encouragement. This club allowed students the opportunity to learn marketing by doing. Students had on-the-job training. They also ran the school's bookstore. DECA was the club portion of Distributive Education. Students had many opportunities in which to excel.

The bookstore was one of the largest projects. They also held recreational activities, benevolent activities, and professional meetings with leaders in the community.

The officers went to Orlando for three days to learn the responsibilities of their positions. The students that excelled the most went to Tampa to represent us at the state conference.

D.C.T. PROFESSIONALS EXHIBIT LEADERSHIP

D.C.T.'s goal was to prepare students for employment and advancement in an occupational field through gainful occupational training, combined with related classroom instruction enabling students to acquire skills, knowledge and develop appropriate attitudes.

Occupational Training provided for: (a) selective occupational placement based on the student objectives, (b) the development and evaluation of the students' skills, (c) supervision of training to correlate classroom instruction with the occupational training, (d) a written training agreement.

Occupational Specialization provided for: (a) individualized classroom instruction, (b) occupational analysis, occupational safety, individual review of related employment area and maintaining occupational training records.

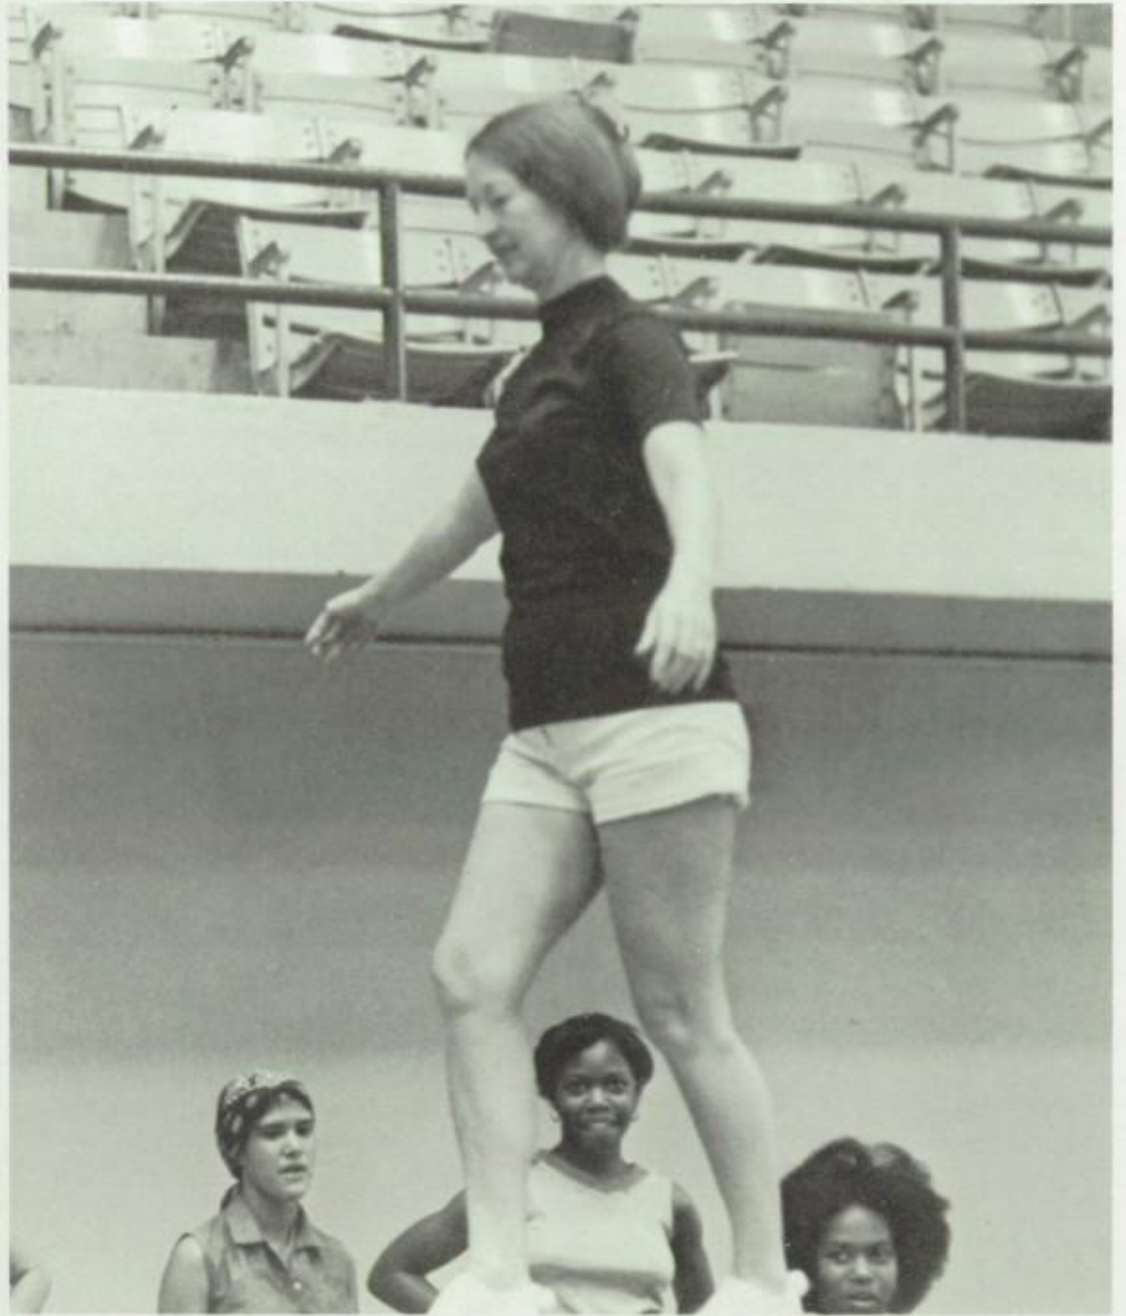

Occupational leadership provided: (a) activities for students by affording them the opportunity to seek an office of leadership, develop a sense of responsibility and demonstrate the importance of working with others, (b) for cooperation among students, parents and school personnel with business, industry and public service, (c) activities which promote a better understanding of cooperative vocational education, (d) activities that assist members in their social growth, (e) activities that contribute to the betterment of society.

The physical education department, because of its range of activities, was one of the most enjoyable and invigorating classes for most students.

They tried to offer a program that was quite stimulating. The program provided activities for every level of skill. The range of activities included gymnastics, softball and other sports. This program was challenging and inspired today's high school athlete and possibly tomorrow's olympian.

Although the exceptional program at Pompano involved only six percent of the student body, it was none-the-less an important part of the curriculum. Students whose needs could not be met within the regular class program were enrolled in classes especially designed to meet their requirements.

Classes were provided for the mentally handicapped, the homebound, the gifted, and the low track student, as well as, those students with specific learning or speech disabilities.

The program was increased with the addition of two new teachers, Shirley Powell and Rosalyn Blake.

The Art Department offered an interesting variety of courses. Students who took art their first year could start with beginning courses, and as they became more advanced may have worked their way to more complicated courses. Wall murals were painted in various buildings by the art students. The art department had its annual exhibit with a wide variety of interesting displays. They exhibited talented students' work all over the school. Mrs. Capstack said, "I feel there were two groups of students taking art: those who are interested in art as a career and those who want to acquire an enjoyable and worthwhile hobby."

Zing-e-e-e-a-ah-ah-ah-ah.

The fantastic Pompano music department was no less than number one with its abundance of talent. This department was composed of three major sections: band, chorus, and orchestra. The band received a new director, Mr. Silkebakken. The marching band was seen at all of the football games and at many other school activities. After the football season was over, the marching band broke up into three sections; the advanced students, which moved into symphonic band; the second made up the concert band. The third group was the stage band, which performed at holiday affairs and other major events.

The choral section of the music department consisted of the more advanced "Tradewinds", the ladies choir, and the beginning chorus; under the direction of Mr. Spain. The Tradewinds presented several concerts and represented our school here and in different parts of the country.

Last, but not least, was our fine orchestra, under the direction of Mrs. Atkinson. The orchestra helped to complete our fantastic music department by being one of the finest in the state.

The department received forty new electric typewriters and also added some new electronic calculators. The business department allowed students to work at their own paces. This furthered their learning and enabled them to achieve more credits.

The philosophy of the math department was to take students at the level of their ability and teach them as many skills and manipulations as they were able to acquire. They hoped to provide every student with the concepts of mathematics that would enable them to handle the problems that would confront them as citizens and as people in the households. By making the course as interesting as possible, they hoped to challenge the students, arouse curiosity, and prepare them for the future.

Miss Beardmore helps student or vice-versa.

Social studies classes had always been one of the most popular areas of high school study. Many of the teachers in this department felt that this was due to the more personal inter-relationship between themselves and their students. This relationship was achieved through a variety of the classes offered, ranging from world history, American History and personal development to the most popular classes of sociology and psychology. In the latter classes students learned, among other things, about marriage and death through a series of lectures and related field trips. Everyone benefited from this department.

Mrs. Scheck has two jobs; assistant librarian and A.V. head.

When we think library we think books. Pompano's library had plenty of those. Whether for pleasure or research the books of the P.B.H.S. library touched practically every subject.

The A.V. department provided audio visual aids such as projectors, films, and recordings to make studies more vivid.

Recent magazines were available in the lounge section of the library in addition to the file of past issues kept by the hardworking librarians.

A well run operation, the library offered its many resources to benefit of all students.

Although the cafeteria was usually thought of as an eating place, students took advantage of the time, tables, and chairs to do last minute homework assignments.

The science department covered a wide range of courses, starting with general sciences and working through earth science, biology, physics, chemistry, marine ecology, and physiology. These courses gave the students a chance to experiment, observe, study, and learn. Through these experiences the students learned to use and respect their environment in the appropriate ways.

Class was not all hard work. Students heard about field trips to places like Okell Lake in Oregon, and studied the Boca Raton Mountain Range, that does not yet exist. This added a laugh to relieve the steady flow of work.

EFFICIENCY IN ACTION

The administration, guidance department, teachers, and students would not have functioned as smoothly had the office personnel not done their part.

The secretaries in each office, switchboard operators, registrar, IBM consultant, and aides all had a hand in the smooth running of a classroom day. They typed reports, the daily bulletin, made announcements, ran errands, helped administrators and teachers with their heavy load of paper work.

Their behind-the-scenes, constant work made the machine (school) run more smoothly.

SPORTS

PRACTICE MAKES ...

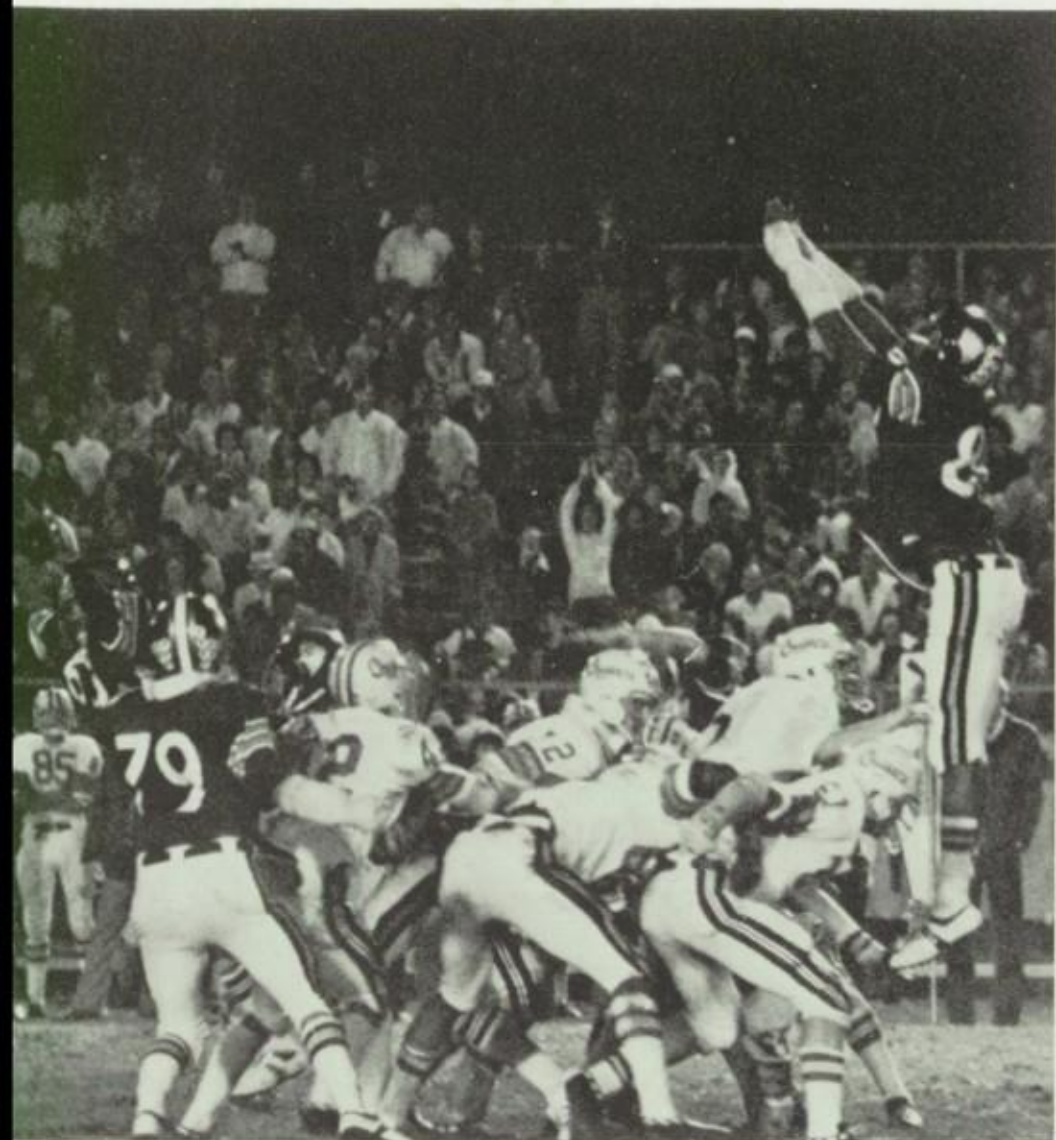

After seeing the varsity squad giving up the last weeks of summer to long, grueling practices; many of us took it for granted these were "just the same old Tornadoes practice sessions".

Little did all of us know that this group of determined guys were about to make football history at Pompano Beach High.

With a tough schedule ahead of them, and a fairly new team, these young men knew they were in for a lot of hard practices. Every day after school for three, maybe four hours, they practiced their hearts out, reaching for the victory every Friday night.

By the time they were half way through the season with five out of five victories, winning seemed like it was almost a habit. With an offense that couldn't be stopped, in the air or on the field, and a defense that could hold back even the toughest of offensive lines; all the hard work was beginning to pay off.

... PERFECT

By the time most of the teams in the county were ending their season, the Tornadoes were just beginning theirs with a perfect season, (ten victories and no losses), behind them; they were on to bigger and better things. With a perfectly "super" team, a staff of coaches that knew it all and gave their all; and most of all—2,000 students who cheered them on. The 1976 Golden Tornadoes Varsity Football team would be remembered as the best in PBHS history.

Not only did the Varsity squad break a record with their wins, but the Junior Varsity team also played better than any team has in a long time.

After losing their opening game 28-0, the coaches decided something had to change. Thus they switched the positions of all the players, finding the winning combination, and coming up on top in four of the six remaining games.

Baby Tornadoes Earn Their Title

Coming into a new school was hard enough for the Freshmen players, let alone playing football for his high school. To most, high school ball was different than anything they had experienced in the past, but you never would have known it by the way they performed in the 1976 season. Practices were held every day before school and after school. These gatherings helped the guys learn and develop skills they would need to earn the title of Pompano Beach High School Tornadoes.

Battle of Sexes Ends In Cross Country

We know you are tired, Jutta, but this is ridiculous!

Even though the boys and girls races were run separately, the spirit and will to win joined them in making 1976 Cross Country team a fantastic one. From the time the season began in August each member of the team had already run hundreds of miles in preparation for their winning season. This proved to be the edge they had over the other teams they ran against. The girls' team, with many returning and experienced runners, finished their season with an unbeatable record, as they have done the past few years. The boys did not do as well because of the lack of experience in their young team. However, from what we saw in this season they should be unbeatable in the coming years.

After only their second year in existence, the girls' volleyball squad surprised everyone with a fairly good season. But with much enthusiasm and confidence, these girls formed a team, one that PBHS could be proud of.

The PBHS Varsity Wrestling team has always been known to be one of the best in the county, and the 1977 team proved to be no different than the rest.

Although many were worried over the loss of the graduating Seniors of 76, returning lettermen Ken Arnold, Brett Davis, Mark Salzano and the former JV. Wrestlers pinned down a winning season for 77. As tradition has it, Pomano Wrestlers dominated the mats again.

Pompano had a group of future champions playing on their Freshman Basketball team last year. Although the final record didn't show it, they put on a remarkable showing against all other teams.

Under the superior leadership of coach Eddie Rokos, many young men learned not only the fundamentals of the game, but also some of the points.

While those players were out dribbling up and down the court, they were dreaming of the day they might be able to play on a court against professional players.

Although Pompano's Freshman team didn't do too well last year. By the time they reach the Varsity ranks they will be just as skilled as our Varsity team members were the year before. Both Coach Rokos and Coach Linville were hopeful for the up and coming team.

Junior Sluggers

Coach Cooley, coaching his third year, led the J.V. Baseball team through its 77 season successfully.

The team consisted of experienced, returning players from the 1976 season and also promising new athletes, all to make a superior J.V. Tornadoes Baseball team.

Practice was held daily after school for a hard working hour of drills and exercises. Coach Cooley was there everyday, giving the team the incentive needed to prepare them for an outstanding season.

Girls Put The Soft In Softball

Under the first year coaching of Alan Perry, the Girls Softball team got off to a great start. More girls than ever before came out for the team, with only the best ones qualifying for a position. Although a fairly new sport in high school competition, girls softball promised to be an exciting one in years to come.

These pages are dedicated to the achievements of the 1976 Golden Tornado football team. After finishing their regular season undefeated, the Tornadoes went on to win the Broward County Athletic Conference along with the trophy, by defeating Deerfield Beach High. After a few days rest and ten straight days practice, the team seemed to be more than ready to win their match with Chaminade.

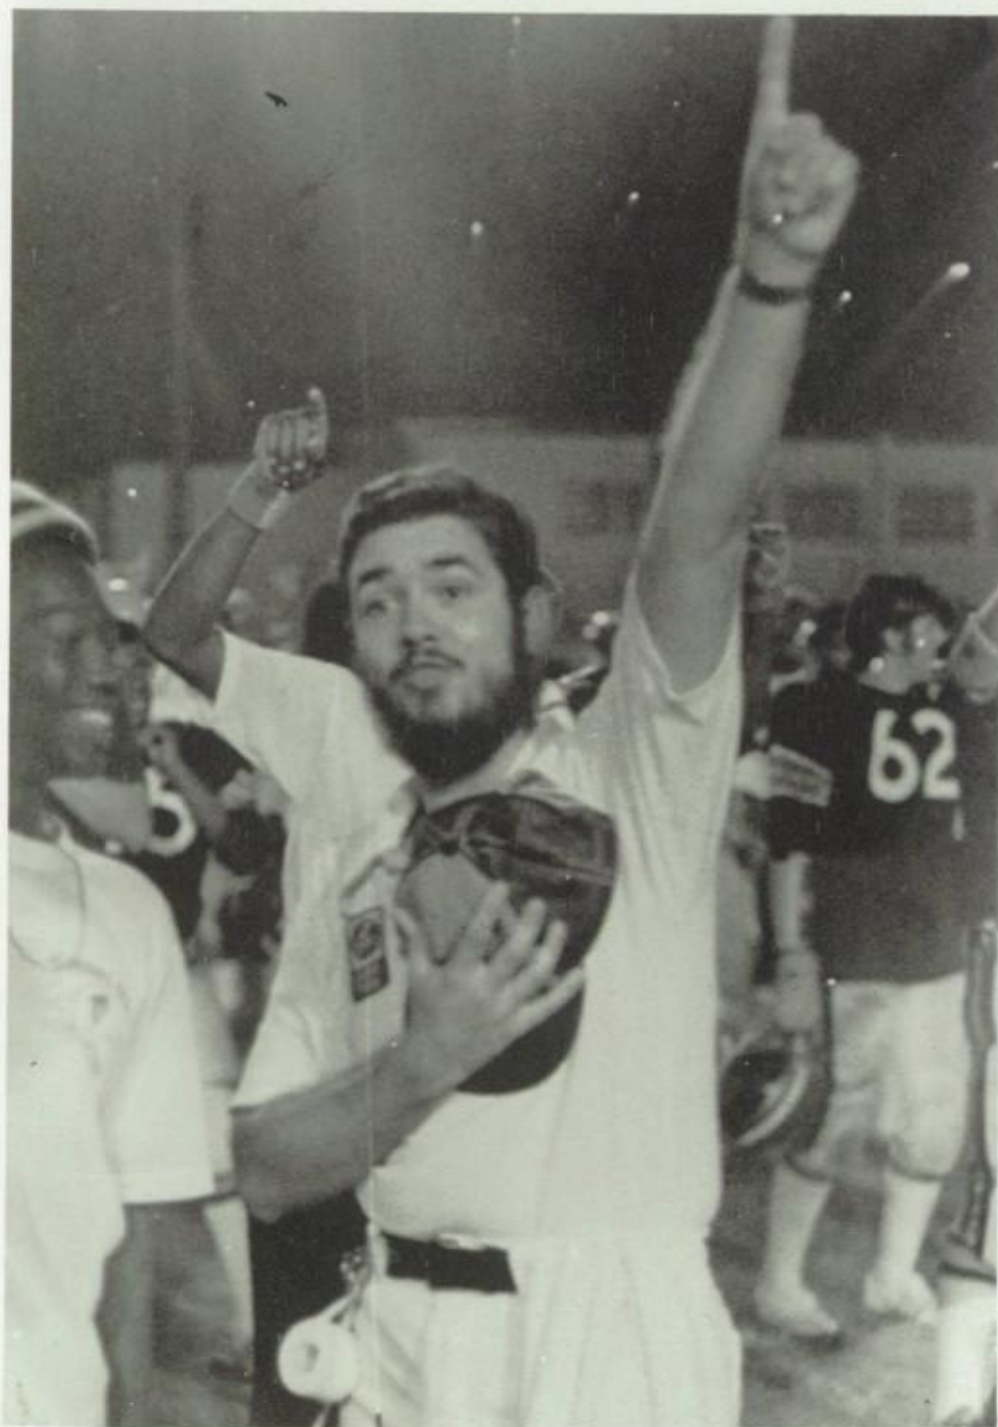

The Tornadoes went on to defeat Chaminade at Lockhart Stadium, thus setting themselves up for the game with Carol City High. One week lapsed between the two games. The game, played against Carol City at Miami-Dade North stadium, was enjoyed by an outstanding number of Pompano fans.

It started with the Tornadoes entering the field with feelings of tension, terror, anxiety, and joy. Going into half-time the Tornadoes were ahead 7-6. The second half the game was touch and go, with each team scoring touchdowns. As the game moved closer to a close, Carol City was ahead by 22-13; the Tornadoes made one last attempt at scoring—which was successful; but left the score at only 22-20, and the game was lost by two points.

Closeness is the key to success.

A Struggle To Survive

The Beanpicker staff spent an active year, trying to produce a special book to commemorate the end of the Bicentennial and the beginning of the Tricentennial.

With only three seniors on a staff of 28 students, the young members learned much about the production of a yearbook—knowing the job would soon be exclusively theirs.

In October, editors Karen MacFarlane and Jim Wells; photo ed. Stephanie Reilly; and advisor Miss Reid flew to New York City for the Columbia Press Association Convention. They stayed at the Taft Hotel in midtown Manhattan, and from there rode the subways and taxis to and from Columbia for journalism workshops.

When not in class, they saw as much of the Big Apple as possible, taking with them countless experiences and leaving behind countless amounts of money.

Trying to meet the deadlines set by their publishing company, the staff members photographed students and events, wrote copy, interviewed classmates and teachers, and then made their layouts, "killing themselves" to get everything done on time so that yearbooks would arrive on time.

Each of the pages in this book represents the combined efforts of yearbook staff members to make for you the best book possible.

Pep Club One Time!

At a time when many older clubs were folding from lack of interest, the infant Pep Club had an outstanding first year. Its membership consisted of the most spirited students in the school, those willing to yell their hearts out for the glory of Pompano High. President Cathy Christos, aided by Vice-president Jim Cantwell, Secretary Linda Christiansen, Treasurer Sharon Smith, and enthusiastic club members formed a club that added that extra pep to Pompano games.

Latin Lives!

They say Latin is a dead language. A small group of students at P.B.H.S. has resurrected it and is now keeping it alive through artificial means. These students, collectively known as the Latin Club, have formed one of the most active foreign language organizations on campus. A fine example of their teamwork was their award-winning Homecoming Parade entry. Enthusiastic numbers and thoughtful guidance from sponsor, Mr. Tronconi, kept the Latin Club healthy and active; not dead at all.

Honor Thy Students

It was a year of rebuilding for Pompano High's National Honor Society. Faced with the problems of dwindling funds and declining attendance, things had looked grim for N.H.S.

The picture brightened at the beginning of the 1976-77 school year, however. An unexpected resurgence of interest in the club among the newly initiated juniors brought attendance figures up. The new president, Gail Morgenthien, began weekly meetings and initiated necessary fund raising projects.

Thanks to the work of energetic members and the sage advice of Mr. Carl Alderman, Pompano's National Honor Society chapter was well on its way to becoming a very active club.

At Pompano, we were fortunate to have clubs that were not only fun, but provided a learning experience for students. One such club was the Future Farmers of America. The group had horse shows at the Sand and Spurs Ranch. They also went to the statewide dairy and poultry judging, and even had their own farm to learn about farming. They also achieved many honors during the year. Their float won first prize in the Homecoming parade and won first place in Parliamentary procedure at the Forrestry Field Day, held at the farm. We were glad to have a club that offered so many opportunities to students.

A Star Is Conceived

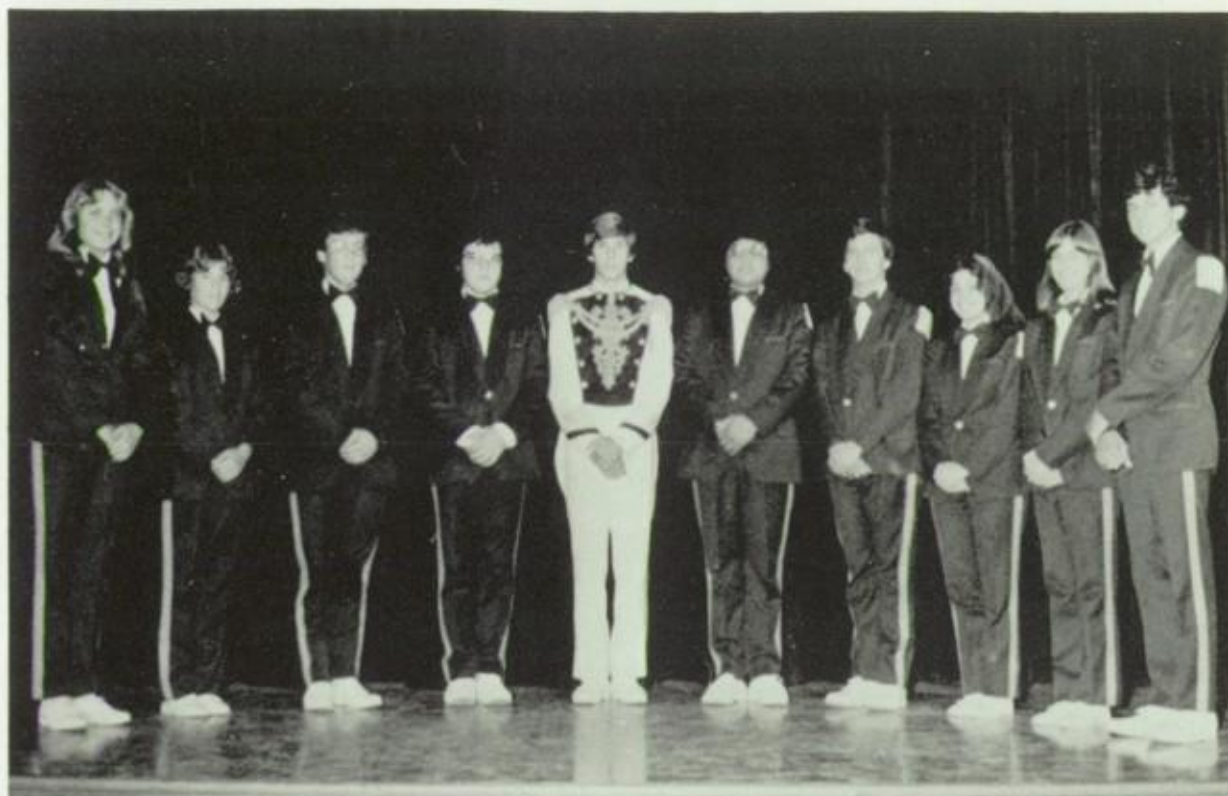

The aspiring actors and actresses of Pompano High needed a place to start their climb to the top. Thespian Troupe 1888 provided them with a chance to get a foot in the door of stardom.

Membership to Thespians could be gained by working on a Thespian production as a member of cast or crew. 1977's Thespian production was The Night of January 16th, a courtroom drama. A major effort, directed by new sponsor Brian Rowland, the play brought fresh talent into the club that would fill the great void left by the graduating seniors.

The band lifted our spirits at all the pep assemblies and at the various other events at which they played.

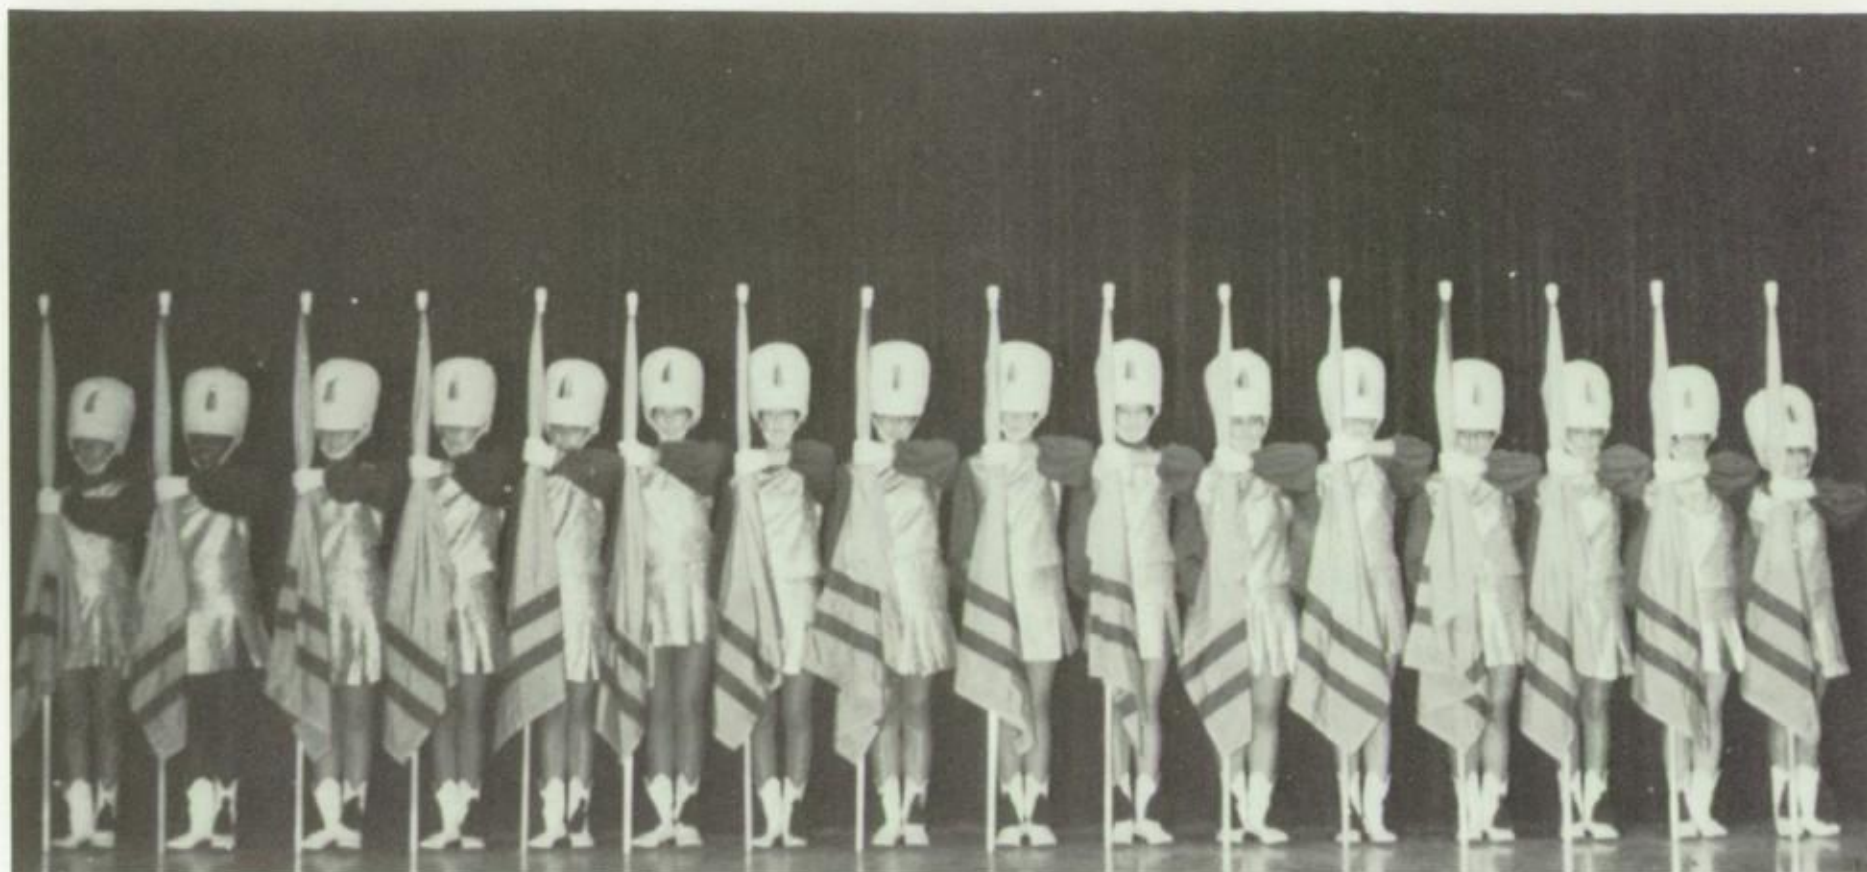

None of their activities would have been possible had it not been for the new band director, Mr. Silkebakken. Mr. Silkebakken, along with the students, put in long hours coordinating the bands' every move.

The French-German club could be said to combine the best of two cultures. Sponsored by Miss Alberta Heckel, a teacher of both languages, the club got off to a great start in its first year. An original Homecoming float and foreign food seminars were among the club's major projects in 1976-77. With its growing membership and enthusiastic sponsor, the club can look forward to a successful future.

Outcry, Pompano High's literary magazine containing the creative writings of Pompano's students, was once again staffed by energetic people willing to work hard to turn out a fine product. Sponsor Miss Cynthia Gottshall and editor Bruce Jensen worked many long hours to bring out their publication. They and many others felt that the chance for a young writer to see his work in print was something worth working hard to provide.

Educated Mice

Keywanettes, sister of the Key Club and sponsored by the Kiwanis, was very active this year. The Keywanettes had a Christmas party for the migrants. They also participated in the North Broward Youth Carnival. They even sold mice; that is, for 50¢ they sent a mouse to college for cancer research. A pancake breakfast, luncheons, and bake sales also kept them busy. The busy year ended with a banquet.

A Club On Key

The Key Club was best known for running the student parking lot, but this was not all they did. The Key Club, sponsored by the Kiwanis Club, went camping at Jonathan Dickinson Park. The group went to a district convention in Sarasota, and a few from the group went to Kansas City for the International Convention of the Key Club.

The members provided many services to our community. They helped the Kiwanis with a carnival to raise money for the Little League Football Team. An art show helped raise money to build a band shell for the city, and throughout the year, members took turns massaging a boy's crippled leg. Instead of having a night banquet, the club had a breakfast at which awards were presented.

Students At Work

The objective of D.E.C.A. was to teach students how to function in the working world, develop future leaders for marketing and distribution, and to interrelate with co-workers.

The professionalism they were taught showed through as they ran the bookstore with efficiency. D.E.C.A. sent six of their students, the officers of the club, to Lake Buena Vista near Orlando for three days. They were there for an Officers Training Conference to learn how to perform their particular positions the best they could. In January they took a trip to a Merchandise Mart in Miami.

There To Serve

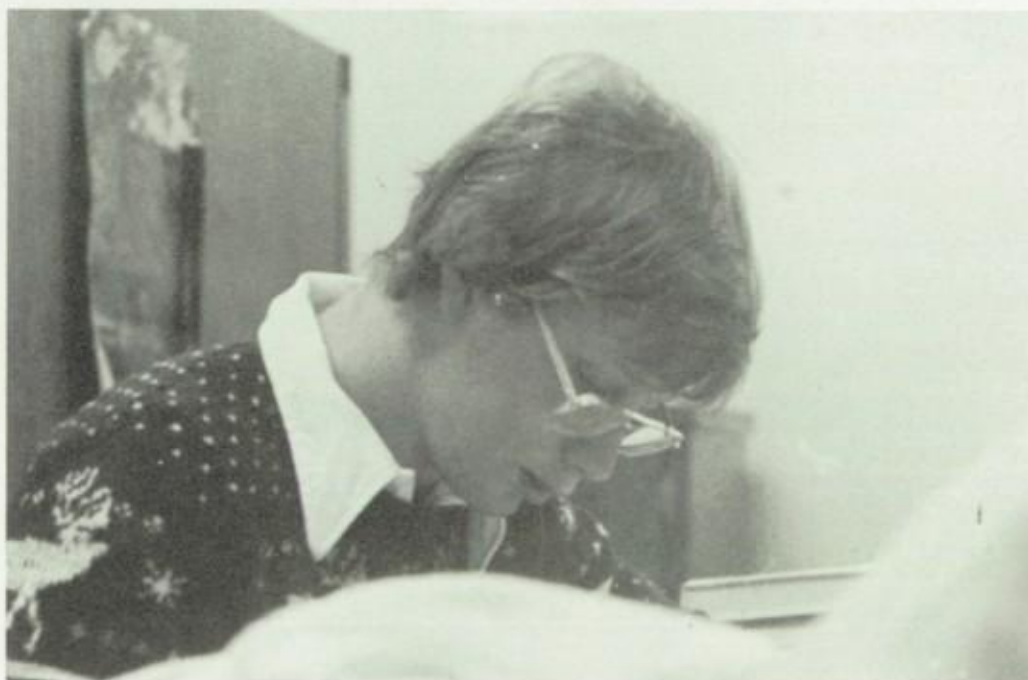

Jr. Exchange Club, one of our more outstanding service clubs, did a lot for the school in the years of 1976-1977.

Along with having a great float in the Homecoming Parade, they ran the concession stand for the Jr. Varsity and Freshman football games, worked on a project—Campus Beautification, and rearranged the trophy case in the gym after donating it to the school.

Many of the clubs bought T-shirts for the members. The Jr. Exchange Club bought shirts for its members too.

The Jr. Exchange did things with other clubs too, challenging them to sporting events.

The Exchangettes was a club to aid the community through various club projects. It was a service club, a branch of the Exchange Club.

They raised money by selling mums for Homecoming. All the girls waited in suspense to receive a corsage from the boy closest to their hearts (that week). The group also ran the concession stand during J.V. football games and went caroling at nursing homes. Do not think you just joined the club and became a member. To become a member, you had to be initiated. This meant wearing crazy costumes to school and if you did not, worse punishment would follow.

The members were rewarded with the annual banquet after a year of hard work and fun.

Domestic Engineers

The purpose of the Future Homemakers was to help the individual improve family and community living. It also provided good preparation for family life development of occupational skills and careers. The Future Homemakers of America was also a service club.

The group worked with children at the hospital during Christmas. They held fashion shows and bake sales to raise money. F.H.A. took a field trip to New York. As well as having fun, they learned about new careers and occupational skills.

F.H.A. was a new club in the year of 1976-1977, and they made a great beginning. Their many activities and spirit in the school showed that they had a bright future.

Sing Your Heart Out

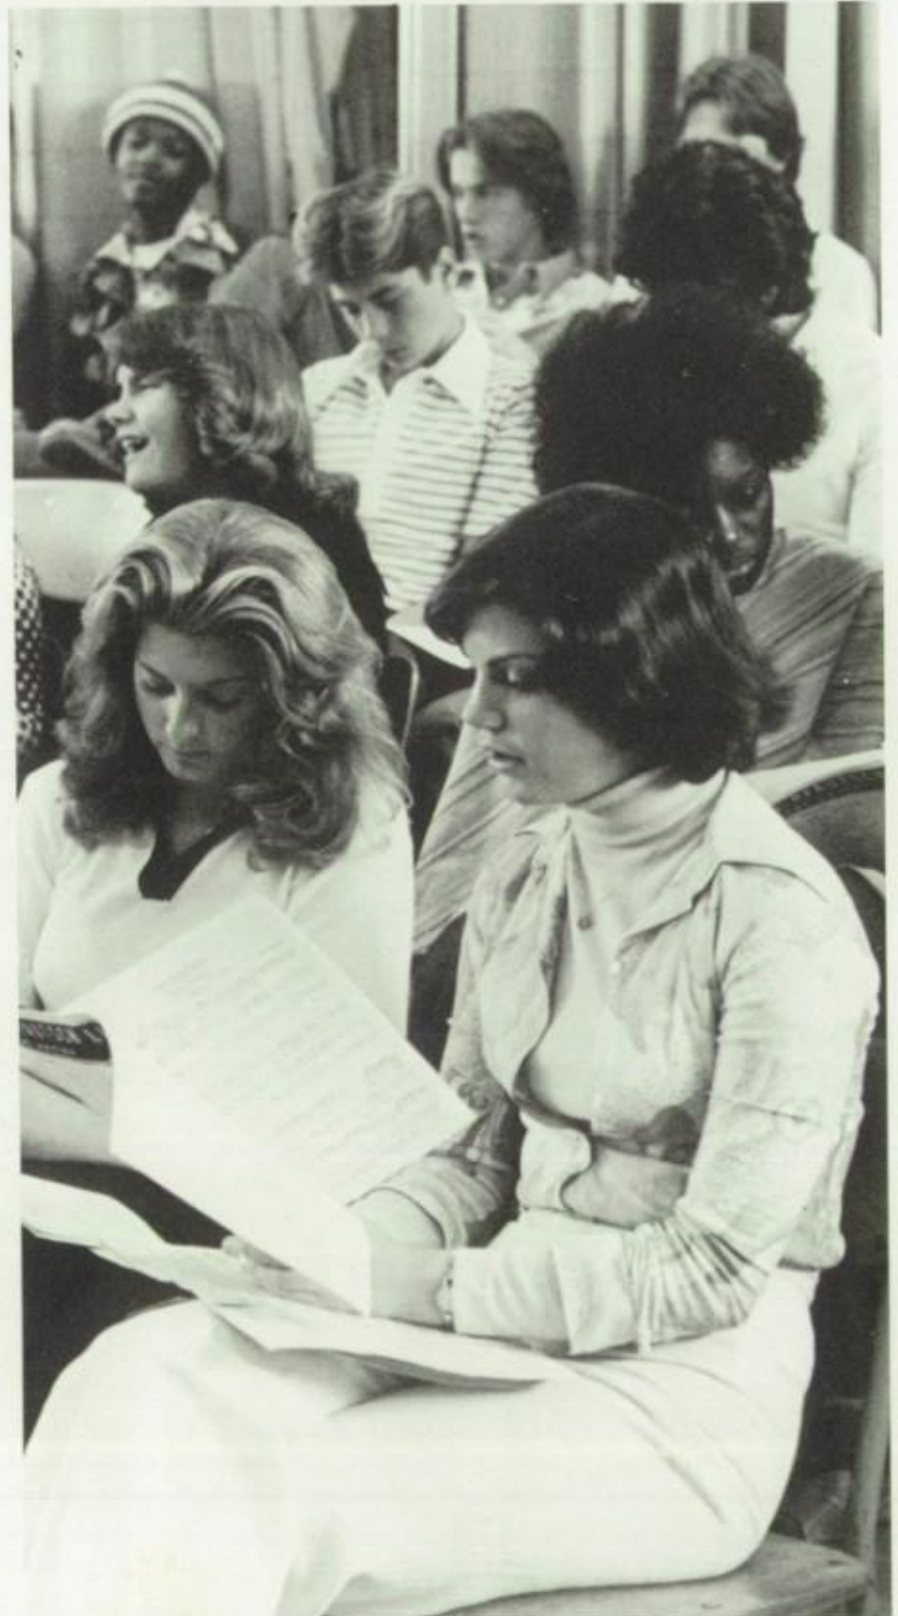

The Tradewinds performed at many concerts. They sang for the Rotary Clubs and various well known organizations. The group also had a Christmas Concert at the school called "Sunshine and Snowflakes". Fun and work was combined to present a concert at Disney World. The group took a spring tour that allowed members to visit colleges and perform on the road. Tradewinds was not just a group that sang together, but they were a group of friends that could share their problems and experiences. In order to become a member, many students tried out and only a few became members. The selectivity of the Tradewinds could be heard in their many concerts.

Sweet Sounds, Melodious Moods

Under the direction of its new teacher and director—Mrs. Atkinson, the Pompano High School Orchestra lived up to its predecessor's notorious reputation.

Ninth graders, coming up from the Middle School Orchestra, automatically earned membership in an intermediate group at Pompano. Other students, however, were auditioned and chosen for membership. Both Orchestras met daily during sixth and seventh periods and then spent long, additional hours in sectional practices after school.

Early in the year, the orchestras participated in a Baroque Music Festival. Then at Christmas, they gave several Christmas concerts at Fashion Square and a convalescent home. From January 6-8, eight members of the orchestra were honored by being chosen to participate in an All State Orchestra. They were Reginald Knight, Diana Evans, Lisa Manners, Nancy Pitcher, George McNally, Gary Saff, Robert Watson, and Sylvie Allaire.

President, Reggie Knight, ably led his musicians through all of their practices, classes, concerts, contests, and daily activities. The Contests were held April 22-23, on the west coast of Florida and the orchestra participated and made Pompano known throughout the State.

Learning Through Doing

Ambitious looking club members wait for job assignments.

The Diversified Cooperative Training Program at Pompano involved many students. This vocational program provided on-the-job training for all students enrolled. However, aside from training, the club was involved in many other activities. In February, DCT participated, along with other schools, in extemporaneous speaking, food service, job interviews and many other categories offered in the County Wide Contest. Immediately following the contest, an awards banquet was held at Galt Ocean Mile. Then to complete the year, five delegates and all contest winners attended the State Leadership Conference in Orlando.

Hitting the bottle again?

The Spanish Club had many students thinking you had to be in a Spanish class to join the club. This however, was not true. The Spanish Club was an interesting club. Their purpose was to involve any student interested in traveling or just having fun. They took field trips to Spanish River Park and to Viscaya. They were also the sponsors of a trip to Spain, which was offered at a low cost.

Funds were raised through bake sales, the selling of basketball pins, and the sale of candy. At the pep assemblies Spanish Club proved one of the most involved and boisterous clubs. If in the year of 1976-77, you wanted to have a good time, you should have joined the Spanish Club.

 Unfortunately I never had a chance to really get to know ^{you}. Maybe next year. But from what I did know of you I can ^{honestly} say you're really sweet. I wish you the best of luck in whatever you do in your future. This year has been a real bummer. Hopefully next year will be better. Just think, we finally got there. It's a miracle for me!
 Well, nothing more to say so I'll be going. However I want to say one more thing first. I hope I get to see you a lot more in the summer and next year.

A Mark of Independence

After four years of hard work and struggle, joys and triumphs, tragedies and disappointments, close friendships and associations; the class of 1977 made its way through graduation and out into the world.

Despite the impeachment of its active president, Donna Rector, the class continued to participate in activities—raising money for its traditional prom and trip to Disney World. 1977's class was filled with individuals, each person pursuing his own interests. This individuality produced independent, talented, future minded graduates—bound for jobs and contributions to the working and thinking world.

The Class of '78 is Doing GRRREAT!!!

The Class of '78 was packed with spirit as they stood on the threshold of being "almost" seniors. The anticipation grew as the year went on and the juniors proved themselves able to be the "Super Seniors of '78".

The resourceful juniors had many successful money-making projects under the leadership of their officers. Their fund raising events included a ribbon sale, a very successful Homecoming Dance, a magazine drive, and their yearly Valentine's Day Flower Sale.

They showed themselves and everyone else that they were ready to move on to a fun and eventful Senior year!

Stephanie Reilly does some last minute studying.

Class Of '79 In Their Prime

Sophomore officers were Carol Balistreri, Melanie Erickson, Kim McGowan, and Kim Petty.

The sophomore class accomplished much this past year. They were led by established leaders all of which were female. Their first major project was a car wash. They made a lot of money from that project but even more from the spirit shakers. Our Pompano students showed our team spirit with these gold and blue shakers. They had a bake sale and sold lots of cakes and cookies. This class had a great year and will have an even better year as juniors.

Freshman class officers were; President—Jim Balisteri, Vice-President—Sandy Robinson, Secretary—Kristie Collier, and Treasurer—Shelly Scates.

It did not take long for this year's freshmen class to get started. They began the year with a spirit chain that proved to be very successful and brought in a lot of money. In addition to that, the class joined together in many car washes where fun and enthusiasm spirited the class. With such dependable leaders as the above, there was no question that anything but success would pass their way. The "class of 1980" button sale was just another of the many freshmen activities by which they added to their treasury and to the reputation of being a very ambitious and active class. The most spirited section at any game or Tornado event was that where a group of freshmen appeared.

Classy People

The faculty at Pompano Senior High in the year of 1976-1977 put long hard hours into their work.

They were all individuals, but all showed the dedication and service needed to make the year go smoothly. The teachers' jobs were much harder this year because they had no planning period, but they continued to do their best.

The appreciation they received was much deserved, as they worked to help us determine our goals and provide us with the best possible education. They did not always receive the praise they deserved, but they always got the job done.

HAVE VOICES WILL SING

The world needs more block heads.

That bunch of wood doesn't say much at first.
Until you think about it.

Somebody cut wood into assorted sizes and shapes to create an individualized "something".

This time it was with wood. Sometimes it's with numbers, or letters, or colors. Other times it's metal, or glass, or fabric, or plastic. Then there's speed and distance and height and bamboo and birdseed.

It really doesn't matter. What matters is the important contribution to the world that each thinking person makes. And how those contributions go to make up the good (or bad) world we live in.

We don't know who you are or what turns you on. We don't have any idea what kind of contribution to life you'll make, or what you'll use to make it with. All we know is, the world isn't going anywhere at all without the thinking of the people pushing it along. Your thinking.

The world needs you. It's that simple.

Being that you're about to go out and "rattle" with it, we thought you'd like to know.

Who are these whiskered friends?

Blurriness is in the hands of the beholder, a Pompano Alumni.

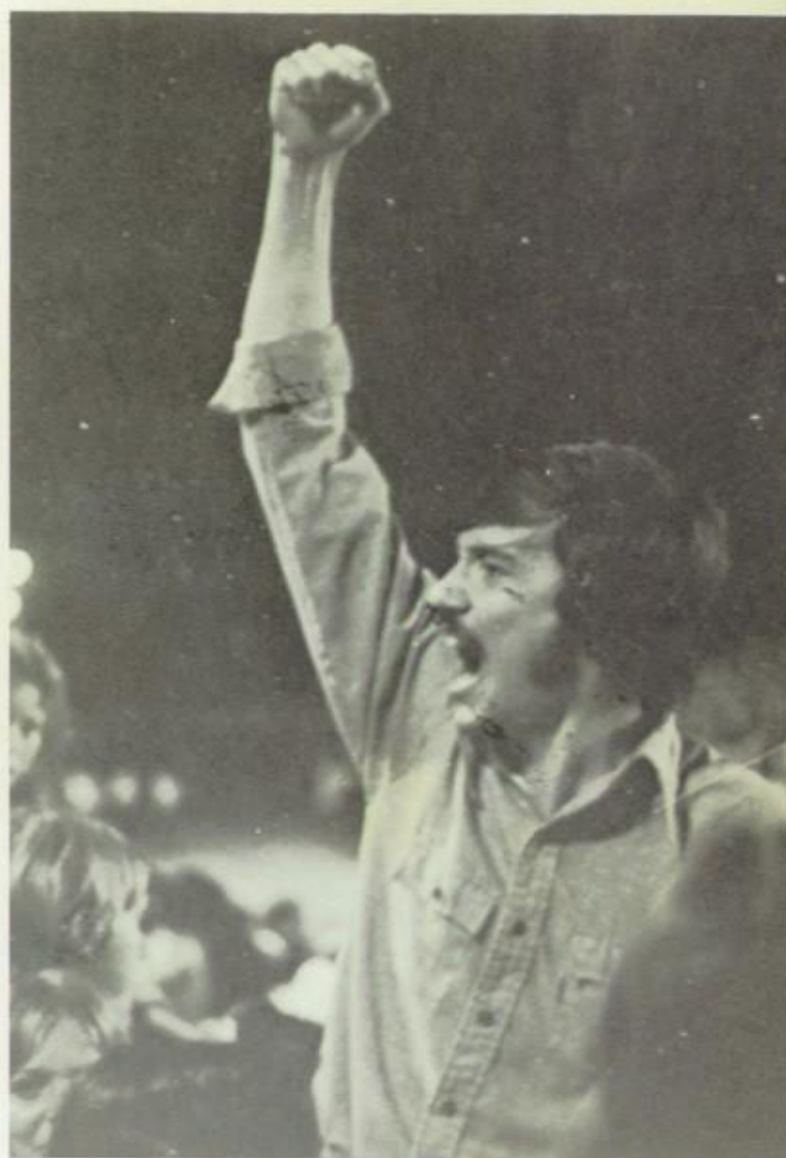

Anthony Pennisi is bewildered by the photographer.

Editor Karen MacFarlane and stoned friend.

Pompano had a large Freshman class in 1977.

"Sieg Heil!"

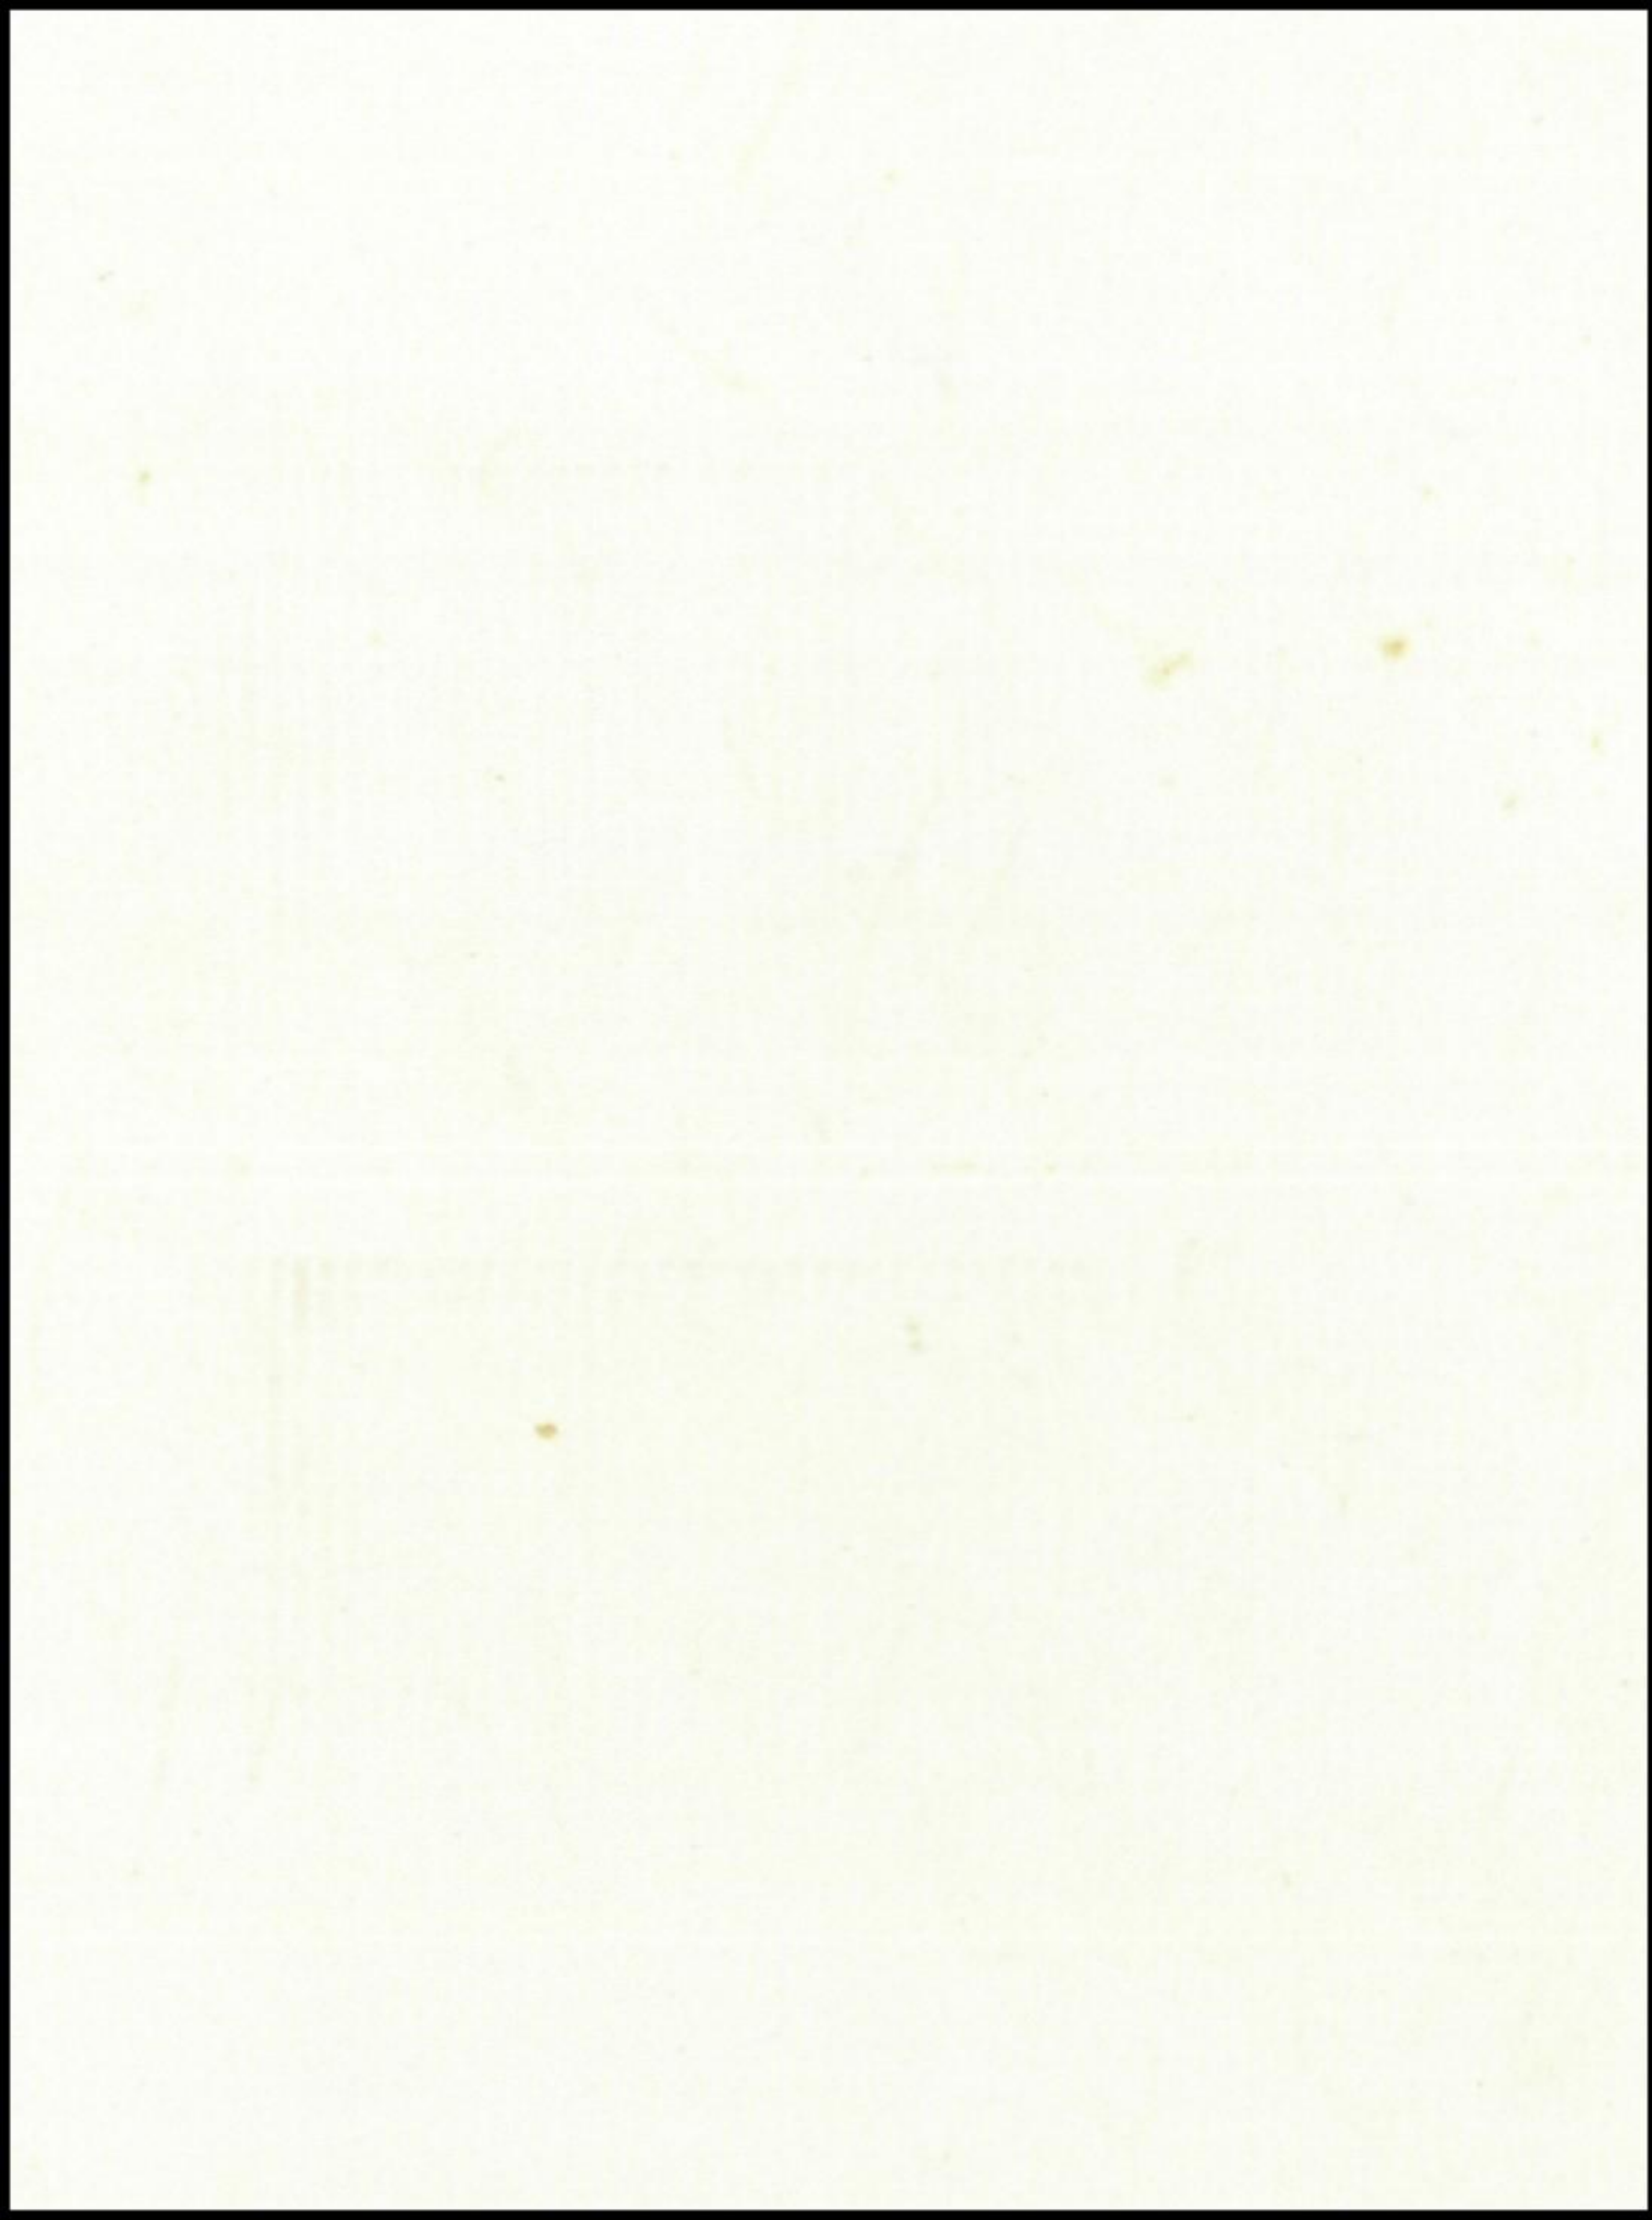

Mark Salzano mixes one for the road.

Down, it been a terrible year
 although it's good it's finished. It's been great running ya.
 a little advice don't feel around with all the gump at the average level.
 Have a great summer
 and all love ya next year. Good luck always.
 And keep your terrible personality.
 your friends always

The first part of the paper discusses the importance of understanding the cultural context of the research. It highlights the need for researchers to be sensitive to the values and beliefs of the communities they are studying. This is particularly important in the field of education, where cultural differences can significantly impact learning outcomes.

The second part of the paper focuses on the methodology used in the study. It describes the process of selecting participants, collecting data, and analyzing the results. The authors emphasize the importance of using a mixed-methods approach to capture both quantitative and qualitative data.

The third part of the paper presents the findings of the study. It shows that there are significant differences in learning outcomes between students from different cultural backgrounds. These differences are attributed to a variety of factors, including language barriers, social norms, and access to resources.

The final part of the paper discusses the implications of the findings for education. It suggests that educators should take steps to create a more inclusive learning environment for all students. This can be done by providing additional support for students who are struggling and by incorporating culturally relevant materials into the curriculum.
